Fears of Trouble at Cork During the Coming Election.

PARTISANS IN BOTH FACTIONS ARMED WITH PISTOLS AND STICKS.

Mr. Webb Advises a Policy of Moderation—Status of the German Social-Democratic and Anarchistic Parties—Afflicted Communities in Europe—Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Gen. Wolseley, commanding the forces in Ireland, who remained in Dublin during the Parnell funeral, will be a frequent visitor to Cork until a successor to Parnell has been elected. It is reported from Cork that the stock of dealers in blackthorns and heavy sticks is almost entirely exhausted, and large additional supplies have been ordered, it is understood, as arguments in the coming election. The fighting last night was more in the nature of a preliminary skirmish and had no decisive result, and while there were a number of bruised heads nobody was badly hurt. The real fighting is expected in the course of a day or so. It is said that many of the partisans in both factions are armed with pistols and will not hesitate to use them. During Redmond's progress to the hotel last night an excited McCarthyite uttered aloud an assertion that Parnell was in a place the reverse of heaven, and that his followers ought to go there too. This so angered a crowd of Parnellites that they captured the McCarthyite and compelled him to kneel down and pray for Parnell. There were other incidents almost equally ludicrous and exciting.

MISS ANNA PARNELL.

Miss Anna Parnell, sister of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, writes a letter to the press, in which she expresses her disbelief in the sincerity of Liberalist professions of a desire to secure autonomy for Ireland. Miss Parnell declares that ever since the perpetration of the Phœnix Park murders she has been frightened at the tendency among a certain class of politicians to adopt an attitude of servility toward England, and to contribute to the monstrous growth of the Gladstone boom.

A POLICY OF "MODERATION."

DUBLIN, Oct. 22.—At a meeting of the National Federation in this city, Mr. Webb, Member of Parliament, who presided, advocated the continuance of the policy of moderation, in spite of the hostility of the Parnellite minority. Messrs. J. Kenney and D. Sheehy, Members of Parliament, made bitter personal attacks upon John Redmond and other Parnellites, stigmatizing them as traitors and saying that every one of them would soon disappear from public life.

PARNELL'S PROMISE.

The Arklow Harbor Board announce that Mr. Parnell's relatives consent to give, free of cost, 8,000 tons of stone for the Arklow Pier from the quarries owned by Mr. Parnell, in accordance with the promise made by the Irish leader.

CORK, Oct. 22.—John E. Redmond, the Parnellite candidate for the vacancy in the House of Commons, caused by the death of Charles Stewart Parnell, who arrived here last night, replying to an address of welcome, announced that he spoke as "the elected leader of the parliamentary party."

PIERCE MAHONEY.

Mr. Pierce Mahoney, Member of Parliament for North Meath, in addressing a meeting of the National League, declared that he was ready to follow the new leader, Mr. John E. Redmond, as loyally as he had followed Mr. Parnell.

DRIFTED APART.

STATUS OF THE GERMAN SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC AND ANARCHISTIC PARTIES.

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Herr Bebel in an interview said that he had never had any doubt as to what the choice of the Social-Democratic party would be as between anarchy and lawful agitation. The party is now so firmly established that it need not fear any attacks on the part of those whom the Congress had expelled or their Anarchist friends. The action taken in expelling the revolutionists was necessary and not taken too soon, as subsequent events, Herr Bebel suggests, will verify. Herr Bebel said that the socialist party would continue to go on in the work it had undertaken without engaging in lawless demonstration and without intermingling with the ojects and aims of other political parties.

PROF. KOCH'S LYMPH CURE.

An exhaustive letter from the pen of Prof. Koch is published to-day. The article will treat of the origin, preparation and application of tuberculine. In it the Professor will declare that by chemical experiments he has succeeded in purifying his lymph of all inflammatory matter. He will add that the effect of an application of pure lymph differs but little from the effects of an application of crude lymph. Only, he says, the amount of the dose determines the effect.

BRITISH TOPICS.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH AT SUNDERLAND—A LUNCHEON TO MRS. GILBERT.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, delivering a political speech in Sunderland, said. "I do not believe that the coming general elections will give Mr. Gladstone a majority of the members of Parliament. I almost wish they might give him a majority in order that the country might again see What an awful me,s he would make of our affairs. Six months of Mr. Gladstone's Government would involve us in disastrous foreign complications, plunge Ireland back into anarchy, and let loose the petty jealousies that have been repressed while the party has been in opposition. The course of events has justified the action of the Unionists and proved that the Parnellites lied when they said that Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill of 1886 would be accepted as final."

A LUNCHEON TO MRS. GILBERT.

A luncheon in honor of Mrs. Gilbert of Daly's theatrical company was given by Mr. Daly at the Savoy Hotel, London, last night, the occasion being Mrs. Gilbert's 70th birthday. Among the guests were many literary and theatrical celebrities. The gathering was an unusual one in that there were present three generations of the famous actress who was the guest of honor.

Dispatches received here this morning announce the death at Matabeleland from exhaustion of Dr. Doyle Glanville, the leader of the British South African expedition.

GORDON-CUMMING.

HIS PLAN OF EVENING UP ACCOUNTS WITH THE PRINCE OF WALES.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Sir William Gordon-Cumming of Baccarat fame, who is rusticating in the Highlands, has lodged a protest with the Municipal Council of Elgin against that body appropriating money to be used in tendering a public reception to the Duke and Duchess of Fife. Notwithstanding the fact that strenuous efforts have been made to induce Sir William to withdraw his protest, he remains firm in pressing it. The Duchess of Fife is a daughter of the Prince of Wales, whose name may be remembered in connection with certain events at Tranbycroft. There are not wanting those who condemn Sir William for seeking to strike at the father through the daughter.

Sir William, it will be remembered, failed in his suit against certain guests of the Wilsons at Tranbycroft, who accused him of cheating at cards. The Prince of Wales was one of the chief witnesses in the trial, having been the dealer in the Baccarat game, and has since cut Cumming's acquaintance, though on very friendly terms with him before the expose.

APPEAL TO PUBLIC CHARITY.

THE RUSSIAN FAMINE EXTENDS TO SIBERIA—THE NEW LOAN.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 22.—The famine has extended to Siberia. The Governor has compiled a report showing that in the districts of Kokthchetowsh and Petrapawlosk what food supplies the inhabitants possessed have been entirely exhausted, and appeals to public charity. Owing to the difficulty of transportation in winter efforts at relief seem almost hopeless. Supplies from Caucasia are improving in quantity, and it is hoped that they will avail to stave off the worst effects of the famine. Advices from the interior of the empire are continually of worse import. The people are commencing to riot in Samara, Saratoff and Veronelz.

THE NEW LOAN.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The manner of the allotment of the new Russian loan gives all the advantage to small applicants. Subscribers applying for from one to four bonds will receive one bond; those applying for from five to nine bonds will receive two bonds, and so on, while the largest applicants will receive only 7½ per cent of the number applied for.

AUSTRIA'S RESPONSE.

IT DOES NOT SATISFY THE POPE AND HE MAY LEAVE ROME.

ROME, Oct. 22.—It is stated that the Pope is still undecided as to whether he will or will not leave Rome. He is not satisfied with the response of Austria, the only Catholic country from which he expected official interference in his behalf and upon which he rested content with an assurance from Italy that the next papal election would be protected from Italian interference. What the Pope hoped for was a vigorous assertion in favor of the temporal power of the papacy. This failing, the Pope is at last resolved to leave Rome, as the most striking protest that he can put against the existing state of affairs. The Cardinals, most of whom are old men and comfortably settled in Rome, are said to have given almost unanimous advice against removal, and have so far exercised a restraining influence upon the Pontiff, coupled with his feeble health.

IMPORTED SALT MEATS.

THE FRENCH CABINET APPROVES THE DUTY OF 20 FRANCS.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

The Ministers also discussed the gravity of the enormous increase in France of the number of railroad accidents. M. Yves Guyot, the Minister of Public Works, who took an active part in this discussion, said that he had caused instructions to be sent to the railroad officials throughout the country, ordering them to redouble their vigilance and to leave no stone unturned to prevent such disasters and to use every effort to place the blame of all accidents upon the proper shoulders.

This action possibly involves a spread of the troubles now existing in Pittsburg to other cities.

The City of New York's Voyage.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Ex-Senator Warner Miller was a passenger on board the steamer City of New York which arrived this morning. The purser of the vessel said: "We had very rough weather, but the ship did not feel the effects of it in the least, not so much as a strand of cordage is ruffled." It was so rough that Pilot Robert Butler of Queenstown, who took the big ship out of the harbor, was unable to leave her and so he was brought across the ocean.

A BAD ACCIDENT ON THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL AT BARDWELL HILL.

About three cars of merchandise are totally destroyed. The frame work of both engines is burned, they being badly locked together. The woods on both sides of the track are burned for nearly a mile. Several cars of oil and merchandise were for Memphis, and are a total loss. The track is burned for 500 feet. The engineer of train No. 19 jumped and is badly hurt. Several others are hurt. Mr. Taylor, the Coroner, thinks that the guilty parties will soon be known. The inquest will be held to-morrow. Two arrests were made yesterday. One of the prisoners was released and the other, W. R. Healy, says he can prove an alibi. The opinion is also advanced that the switch was not in perfect condition.

The asylum authorities, with the aid of the coroner, tried to keep the matter secret, even failing to inform the dead man's family of the cause of death.

Two months ago the mill was sold under the foreclosure of a mortgage for $75,000 held by the Berkshire Life Insurance Co. of this city. A HEAVY LOSS.

Gen. Chapin's Big Investment in an American Refrigerator Co.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 22.—Gen. Walter Bartlett Chapin is the plaintiff in a suit now on trial in the United States District Court against Frank A. Smith, an inventor of Remington, Pa., and J. T. Fargason, a millionaire capitalist and planter. Gen. Chapin, a Rhode Islander by birth, but a resident of England, listened to Smith's description of a wonderful refrigerating machine of his own invention. Smith said that Mr. Fargason was his backer, and Chapin immediately paid Smith £10,000 cash and gave him £10,000 of stock in an English company. Gen. Chapin interested a Mr. Reynolds of England in the matter, and they began the manufacture of the machines. The machines proved utterly useless and Mr. Reynolds being called upon by Miss Emily Rigi, an actress, to refund her investment, Gen. Chapin was obliged to call on one of his sons, who is married to the daughter of a St. Louis banker, to pay the money. Mr. Fargason's connection with the affair appears to be simply as a fellow victim with Gen. Chapin of Smith.

TO SECURE CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

A St. Louis Delegation in Conference With Chicago Officials.

Last night President Marcus Bernheimer, J. W. Kauffman and George H. Morgan left for Chicago for the purpose of conferring with the officers of the Chicago Board of Trade in reference to obtaining Chicago quotations after Nov. 1. On that date the private wires will be taken from the floor of every exchange in the country, in accordance with the order recently issued by the Western Union Telegraph Co. This will practically shut out the great majority of floor traders from rapid and accurate news of the condition of the Chicago market unless some new arrangement is made. In the course of its war with the bucket shops the Chicago Board of Trade ceased entirely sending out official quotations. The St. Louis delegation will endeavor to make an arrangement by which the Chicago market can be posted on the blackboard. In case the Directors of the Board of Trade refuse to grant the necessary facilities, it is probable that some arrangement to furnish the quotations will be made with a private firm.

THE SEARLES WILL CASE.

A Big Crowd in Attendance at the Second Day's Hearing.

The other letters were of no present importance. Mr. Burley then asked for letters from Mr. or Mrs. Searles to Hubbard & Stillman. They were read and showed deposits to Mrs. Searles' credit in banks to the amount of $240,000 in three months. The last telegram announced Mrs. Searles' death.

DIES BEFORE DAWN.

Adelbert Goheen to Be Hanged at Fergus Falls, Minn.

THE MURDER OF ROSETTA BRAY TO BE LEGALLY AVENGED.

A Blood-Thirsty Reporter Tries to Kill a Woman—Shot by a Wronged Husband—Hoppe on Trial—Train Robbers Captured—A Rich Farmer's Crime—Murdered for a Trifle.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., Oct. 22.—In a solitary cell in the jail of Otter Tail County to-day paces slowly up and down murderer Adelbert Goheen. Between midnight and dawn he will be hanged for the wanton killing of Miss Rosetta Bray on the night of March 24, 1891. The body of the woman was found near the Great Northern Railroad track, a mile or so from the center of this city. It was frozen stiff, and the first supposititon was that she had frozen to death, but later two bullet wounds were found, one in her head, the other in her breast. It was known that Goheen was in the habit of visiting at her lodgings. She lived alone and had no other male acquaintance. Suspicion fastened upon him, and although the evidence was circumstantial he was arrested, convicted of the crime and sentenced to die.

Sheriff Billings has wisely determined to get the job done as quickly as possible. A corridor which stretches transversely across the jail, between the cells and the Sheriff's residence, will be the place of execution. A hole has been cut through the floor of the second story and the trap placed there, and from a heavy beam overhead the rope has been suspended. The execution will be strictly private, according to the provisions of the present State law. The prisoner has named the three prisoners whom he may choose. The Coroner and one other doctor will be present, the Sheriff and his men and the Catholic priest, Father Lange, whom Goheen has chosen as his spiritual adviser. The rope has been carefully tested and the trap and other paraphernalia put in position. As the hour of the execution approaches Goheen's defiant behavior does not alter, though those who are about him say there is a slight but unmistakable increase of nervousness and mental distress. It is predicted that he will either fight like a tiger cat at the last or else break down utterly and have to be carried to the gallows bodily. He has no friends in the jail. His temperament is so ugly and vicious that those who might otherwise pity him will feel nothing but relief at his death.

It is hoped that the scenes witnessed at the execution of Wm. Rose at Redwood Falls last Friday morning will not be repeated in Goheen's case. The rope broke when Rose was shot through the trap and the hanging had to be repeated.

A BLOODTHIRSTY REPORTER.

CASSIUS MOREY TRIES TO KILL MRS. ANNIE WARD AND HIMSELF.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Cassius Morey, who for years past has been more or less closely connected with a New York morning paper in a repertorial capacity, tried to murder Mrs. Annie Ward, an inmate of the house No. 202 West Twenty-fourth street, shortly after 6 o'clock last night, by shooting her through the head with a revolver. Then he attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself through the heart. He failed in both cases. The ball struck the woman under the left eye and has been extracted. He shot himself in the left side of the chest, three inches above the heart, and at the hospital last night it was said he might recover. Morey has occupied a furnished room in the house for five months. Morey was Horace Greeley's pet office boy in the early days of the war. He is unmarried. Horace Greeley took a great fancy to Morey, it is said, and finally procured him a repertorial position under Henry J. Raymond. He had a wide range of acquaintances among the politicians who figured in Greeley's time, and was generally employed in political work and about the Custom-house until he became disabled.

HOPPE ON TRIAL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The trial of Alexander Hoppe, the electrician who shot and killed his landlord, Frank Kretschum, opened in Judge Cowing's court yesterday. Kretschum's business called him away from the city frequently and he had been out of work for some time, when he received a good position in Boston. He was behind in his rent before he left and secured a promise from Kretchum that he would allow Hoppe's family to stay in the house until he could make enough in Boston to pay up. Hoppe went and during his absence Kretschum had the family turned out in a rainstorm. Mrs. Hoppe was away at the time working. When she returned in the evening the furniture was ruined and the children were soaked. The exposure resulted in a severe cold and 2-months-old Annie almost died. She was laid up for two months. When Hoppe heard of the treatment his family was subjected to by the miserly landlord he returned home and killed him on sight. Hoppe is given a good character by his employers and the prevailing impression is that he will be acquitted.

A TERRIBLE GALE.

MANY VESSELS BADLY DAMAGED—SERIOUS FLOODS IN SPAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—A terrible gale, accompanied by a tremendous sea, is prevailing at Angelsea, an island of Wales, in the Irish Sea. Many vessels which were damaged in the storm have taken refuge at Holyhead. A Norwegian brig was driven ashore at that place and wrecked. The life-boat men stationed in the vicinity went to the rescue of the imperiled crew and succeeded, after a desperate struggle, in bringing them safely to the shore.

Neither has been heard from since, and there is little doubt they have been lost with all hands. The men are mostly provincials and foreigners by birth, but many of them leave families in New England.

Ovahofsky regained consciousness and gave the names of his assailants and they are in jail at Streator.

ROBBED THE MAIL.

A WELL-KNOWN ARKANSAS CROOK ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 22.—Two mail pouches containing a number of registered packages and several hundred letters were stolen from a mail car of the Little Rock & Memphis Railroad at an early hour this morning. The theft was so cleverly perpetrated that the pouches were not missed until several hours later, when detectives began a search for the robbers. George Ellis, a well-known crook, was found in the woods about one mile from the scene of the robbery seated on a rock engaged in opening letters in search of money and then burning them up. He was arrested. He is also the man who has been burglarizing residences of prominent citizens.

A MINE PROMOTER IN TROUBLE.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—At the examination in bankruptcy proceedings to-day of the directors and other officials of the Gold Queen Mining Co., organized to acquire mining lands in the State of Colorado in the United States of America, Mr. Thomas Gilbert, the vender of some of the land and Secretary of the company, gave evidence before the court. Immediately after the taking of Mr. Gilbert's testimony he was arrested upon the charge of misappropriating the company's funds.

A RICH FARMER'S CRIME.

MUNCIE, Ind., Oct. 22.—After being out twenty-hours the jury brought in a verdict finding Joseph Pugsley guilty of larceny and sentenced him to the State prison for one year and a fine of $1. Pugsley is a wealthy farmer residing near Dalesville, ten miles west of Muncie. A few months ago Thomas Conley, a neighbor, missed a new plow from his field, where it had been left the night before. A few days later Conley discovered Pugsley using it. Conley, greatly surprised, offered to take the plow home and say nothing. Pugsley's refusal of the offer resulted in the sensational arrest and conviction.

A FATAL RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

FULTON, Mo., Oct. 22.—Miss Georgia Halley, daughter of Collector Thomas H. Halley, was killed in a runaway accident here yesterday afternoon. She was one of a party composed of her brothers, Dr. Charles Halley of Mexico and Dr. John Halley of Benton City, and Mrs. C. D. Halley, a sister-in-law of Aux Vasse, who were en route to Carrington to attend the wedding of another brother of Miss Halley. The horses attached to a surrey in which the party was riding took fright and ran away.

DUBEDAT SENTENCED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 22. Frank Dubedat, the stock broker who was recently brought back from South Wales to answer to a charge of fraud and violating the bankruptcy laws, has been sentenced to eight years' imprisonment. He was President of the Dublin Stock Exchange.

TRAIN ROBBERS CAPTURED.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 22.—Word has been received from Lengay that four of the Southern Pacific train robbers were captured about one hundred miles north of that point last Friday by Capt. Jones and his rangers. Three of them surrendered, but John Flint, after a terrific battle, committed suicide, preferring that to capture.

BANK ROBBERS ARRESTED.

LA GRANDE, Ore, Oct. 22.—The three men who robbed the Enterprise National Bank some weeks ago were arrested last night at Karmela, this county. The robbers secured $3,500.

SHOT BY A WRONGED HUSBAND.

BURLINGTON, Io., Oct. 22.—W. A. Pollock, a traveling man, shot and fatally wounded James Andrews and then sent a ball through his own lungs. He left a letter charging that Andrews had been intimate with his wife.

CRIMINAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Charles Hammond, whose body was found in his yard at Jackson, Tenn., some ten days ago, is supposed to have been murdered. Hammond formerly lived in Galena, Ill.

THE STREET CAR MEN.

Second Day's Session of the National Association at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 22.—At this morning's session of the National Street Railway Association E. M. Scribner of New York read a paper on the "State Treatment of Corporate Property." Mr. Scribner confined himself to the abuses existing in New York State, and charged up the wrongs committed in the assessments of corporations to both the Democrats and Republicans. William J. Stevenson of Washington, D. C., said that while the complaint made by the speaker of the discrimination against corporations of New York State was great, it is not nearly so bad as in Washington, as the laws in regard to the regulation of corporations there are made by Congress and are very severe. H. C. Payne of Milwaukee advised the Eastern capitalists to go west to invest their money, as no such stringent laws existed in any of the Western States that he knew of. He was certain that it was not so in Wisconsin. The independent storage or primary battery system of electric motive power was discussed by Mr. Knight Neftel of Lancaster. The paper dealt principally with storage batteries and the progress made in the use of this kind of motive power. The author stated that the use of storage batteries has been accomplished with a varying amount of success. The batteries have been in use long enough on various roads to justify the prediction that good results are practicable in the near future.

AN ALASKAN TRAIL.

The Practical Results of Lieut. Glover's Expedition—His Last Letter.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 22.—A second letter has been received here from Lieut. E. J. Glover, who with a party started out last spring to find a pack trail into the interior of Alaska. He has now returned to Pyramid Harbor, from where he writes: "Our experience with pack horses is destined to play an important part in Alaskan history. It proves a possible transport where none before existed, except the Indian carrier—a mode of conveyance upon which the solid development of the country could not be made. The United States and Dominion Governments can now follow our footsteps and survey the land they claim. They can go in and fill in the blank chart with the lakes and streams belonging therein."

TERRIBLE BOILER EXPLOSION.

Six Men Killed on the Grandin Farm in North Dakota.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 22.—A special to the Journal from Mayville, N. D., says that a terrible threshing machine accident occurred there on Division No. 4 of the Grandin farm. The boiler of the threshing engine burst and six men were killed. Their names were: M. N. Ersberger, Hals Baarstad, A. L. Marsh, A. W. Blowers, Wm. Clark and one unknown. The explosion was due to cold water forced into a heated boiler when the water was low.

REVOLT PUT DOWN.

Attempt to Overthrow President Gonzales of Paraguay.

THE REBELLION SUPPRESSED BY GOVERNMENT TROOPS.

Flight of the Insurgents to Argentine Territory, Where They Were Disarmed—The Paraguayan Cabinet—Salvador Deserted by the Commanders of Her Navy—Chilian Election.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 22.—Advices received here from Asuncion, the capital of the Republic of Paraguay, bring news of an attempt there to overthrow President Juan G. Gonzales. The attempted revolution, however, was promptly suppressed by the troops loyal to the Government. Full details are not yet procurable, but it is known that there has been an uneasy feeling in Paraguay and a spirit of hostility to the Government there for some time past. This has resulted in rumors as to plots against the Government and as to conspiracies to overthrow the President. As usual in all South American revolutions the trouble originated in, and was nurtured by political rivalries and disappointed ambitions, the "outs" scheming against the "ins," and the latter leaving no stone unturned to crush their opponents politically and otherwise. This jealous rivalry continued to grow in strength until the Government's opponents some days ago boldly threw off the mask, and collecting the most desperate of their adherents they made an appeal to the people, armed themselves and sought to wrest the reins of power from the properly constituted authorities, claiming that the latter had in many ways abused the trust vested in them.

The Government was not slow to accept the challenge, and immediately sent a force of troops to put down the insurrection. An engagement took place between the Government troops and the revolutionists which resulted in the defeat and flight of the latter. The rebel forces in the main were so badly routed that they were compelled to fly from the territory of Paraguay and seek refuge within the borders of the Argentine Republic. The Argentine Government was notified of this fact and sent instructions to the frontier authorities, ordering that all Paraguayans found with arms in their possession on this side of the frontier should be disarmed. This was done without any difficulty, the defeated revolutionists readily surrendering their weapons when requested to do so by the Argentine officials.

The Paraguay Government against which this revolution was aimed consists of President Juan G. Gonzales, who was elected Sept. 25, 1890; Juan C. Centurion, Foreign Secretary; Juan Sosa, Minister of Finance; Dr. Carlos Gondra, Minister of Justice, and Gen. Duarte, Minister of War.

THE ATTACK WAS PLANNED.

CRITICAL CONDITION OF THE AMERICAN SAILORS MOBBED AT VALPARAISO.

VALPARAISO, Chili, Oct. 22.—The condition of two of the six sailors from the Baltimore, who were wounded in the cowardly attack by the Chilian sailors and rabble last week, is now considered critical. The names of the injured Americans are: Hamilton, Talbott, Turnbull, Anderson, Davidson and Panter. The inquiry so far as made discloses the fact that gross cruelty was practised upon the Americans and that the murderous assault was entirely unprovoked. It is believed that the attack was planned. It is alleged that Mate Regan was shot by a policeman. It has also come to light that in no case was one of the Americans armed, and the valiant fight they made against a force greatly their superior, with only nature's weapons to defend them, is highly commended.

In justice to the Chilians it must be said that information has been received to the effect that a few of their army and naval officers and seamen displayed bravery in trying to shield the Baltimore's men from the fury of the mob. Capt. Schley advises the coming here of the Admiral to aid by his presence in seeing full justice done to the victims of the cowardly, bloodthirsty assassins.

ELECTION IN CHILI.

THE LIBERALS RECEIVE LARGE MAJORITIES AT ALL POINTS.

SANTIAGO, Oct. 22.—Returns from the elections held throughout the Republic on Sunday last show that the Liberals have large majority in the Electoral College, the duties of the members of which are, to a great extent, similar to those of the Presidential Electors in the United States, with the important difference that the members themselves select and appoint the chief of the State. The members of the Chilian Senate serve a term of six years, and are elected directly by the provinces. The members of the Chamber of Deputies serve three years and are elected by Deputies. The strength of the Liberal party is shown by the fact that it has elected thirty of its candidates for the Senate, while the Clericals have elected only two. In the Chamber of Deputies the Liberals will have full control of the House, for they will have at least a majority of thirty, the returns showing the election of sixty-two Liberals and thirty-two clericals.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

SALVADOR'S NAVAL COMMANDER DESERTS HIS POST—GUATEMALA'S CONGRESS.

SAN SALVADOR, Oct. 22.—This republic's navy is in a bad way. The Italian, Ambrosini, who was commander of the only war vessel belonging to Salvador, the little steamer Cuscatian, has abandoned his post and gone to San Francisco, carrying away 10,000 pesos of the Government money, which had been destined to pay for repairs to the steamer.

Guatemala's Congress will meet on Oct. 28 in extraordinary session to discuss the financial difficulties which are proving so distressful to that country. For several months during 1891 the Government employes have been paid with paper currency, which nobody wants even at 20 per cent of its face value.

Suit Against the Lindell Railway.

Julius Steinwinder and Charles Stoffregan filed suit in Justice Spaulding's office to-day against the Lindell Railway Co. for $72 damages for breaking their wagon. A motor car on the Lindell line collided with their wagon sometime in September on Chouteau avenue near the viaduct over the Frisco tracks some distance beyond Grand avenue. The wagon was completely wrecked.

Run Into and Damaged.

A wagon owned by the Perry Pie Co. was run into and damaged $50 by motor car No. 14, at 10:30 o'clock this morning, at Fourteenth and Wash streets. A hundred pies were thrown from the wagon and scattered all over the street.

HIS FIRST DAY.

Chancellor Chaplin of Washington University Reaches St. Louis.

HE ENCOUNTERS DISCOURAGING INDICATIONS OF WESTERN SENTIMENT.

Morning Newspapers Filled With Prize Fights and Suicides and Not a Line of Educational News—In Favor of University Extension—Meets the Washington University Faculty.

Prof. W. S. Chaplin, the newly-elected Chancellor of Washington University, arrived in St. Louis this morning from Boston and registered at the Southern Hotel. At 10 o'clock he was met by Prof. M. S. Snow of the University faculty, and together the two gentlemen went out to the University over which Prof. Chaplin's Chancellorship direction begins from this date. Arrived there, the new Chancellor was installed in Prof. Snow's room on the second floor, and then for a half hour or more he was kept pleasantly busy making the acquaintace of the various members of the Washington University faculty, who were introduced to him in rapid succession by Prof. Snow. In the midst of this collegiate levee a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH called at the University, and its new chancellor most promptly and kindly submitted to an interview.

Judging from appearances, Chancellor Chaplin may be confidently described as a man of decision and action and, judging further from his first utterances in St. Louis, he may be pronounced as an educator of some aggressiveness in the expression of his views. Over 6 feet in height, and with a bearing that bespeaks his military training at West Point, the new head of Washington University has a strong, firm face, shaded by a closely trimmed auburn beard, quiet but rather quick and resolute gray-blue eyes, and a massive head, which is rendered somewhat picturesque by its covering of light-brown hair in apparent mutiny against conventional form. In speaking, Chancellor Chaplin is calm, quick, decisive and apparently aware of the full significance of every word. He is also evidently well-accustomed to being interviewed and loses but little time in defining his views clearly and distinctly upon any topic that chances to be suggested.

THE NEW CHANCELLOR TALKS.

"There will be no disturba nce of Washington University system or routine following my assuming the post of Chancellor," said Prof. Chaplin in reply to a question. "My first duty is to become acquainted with the present faculty, to familiarize myself with the educational sentiment in the West and to ascertain definitely the educational sentiment of the public in the field covered by Washington University.

"I have, practically, as yet, no knowledge upon these points. I am not familiar enough with the University organization itself to judge whether it is or is not in need of change or improvement, and until I thoroughly post myself in these matters I am certainly not in a position to talk of innovations or changes of any description. I suppose there will be a meeting of the University faculty shortly, at which I will take my place as Chancellor, but so far as the work goes, you may say that it begins from to-day. There is no reason for a special board meeting, the routine of the University term need not be disturbed in the slightest, and I shall quietly drop into my place. It is, or should be, eminently characteristic of all educational work, that after it has once actively begun, nothing should be allowed to interfere with or disturb its natural system of progress.

FAVORS UNIVERSITY EXTENSION.

"But, while I express no definite plans as to the probable development of the University in the near future, I nevertheless confidently expect such development, based upon the assumption that the West is ready for it. I am strongly in favor of what is known as 'University extension,' the movement to lower the barriers which great universities have heretofore placed in the way of the acquisition of a university education by young men of limited means. The movement is of great strength in the Eastern universities, and there is now no reason why any young man who so desires may not be able to obtain a university education. Should I find Western sentiment in favor of university extension you may rest assured that Washington University will be in line with the movement. The recent bequest of $100,000 to Washington University I regard as a recognition of the fact that Washington University is expected to make material advance and improvement in the near future. As to the enlargement of the faculty, that will necessarily come with the general progress of the university.

A CANDID ATTACK.

"But all this prospect of improvement depends entirely upon whether or not university improvement and extension is demanded by public sentiment. Upon the very day of my arrival in St. Louis I find a significant indication which I would like to have explained away. I find first that I came to St. Louis at its busiest educational time, and then I find that in two morning newspapers there is not one line about educational matters. There is news of a suicide and of a prize fight, but no news of college or university happenings. Is this because the Western people are more deeply interested in prize-fights and suicides than in educational matters? I give newspapers credit for finding out and publishing the news which their patrons are willing to pay for. Upon that assumption, my first study of Western public sentiment is rather discouraging. In New York and Boston the newspapers keep their readers fully posted on educational news, and recognize it as a large field and one of the greatest interest to the Eastern public. It would seem that the same field in the West should offer similar encouragement to the newspapers, but I see no indication of it."

With this rather startling assertion in the nature of an implied charge against the tenor of public sentiment in the West Chancellor Claplin closed his interview. He was plainly aware of the full meaning of such an expression of opinion on his part and made his closing statement very deliberately. He then accompanied Prof. Snow on a tour of inspection of the university building and grounds.

CHANCELLOR CHAPLIN'S CAREER.

Prof. Chaplin is about 43 years of age, and is a native of Maine. He entered the Military Academy at West Point in 1866, graduating in 1870, second in rank in a class of fifty-eight. The Engineer Corps being closed by law until the number of officers was reduced to a certain limit, he was appointed Lieutenant in the Fifth United States Artillery, serving until 1872, when he resigned to engage in railroad engineering, in which he was engaged in the Northwest until 1874, at which time he was appointed professor of mechanics in the Maine State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts.

In January, 1877, Prof. Chaplin was appointed professor of civil engineering in the Imperial University of Japan at Tokio remaining until July, 1882. While occupying this position he was called to take charge under the Minister of Public Works of the roads, railways, canals, harbors and other engineering works of the Japanese Empire. Preferring to return to America on account of his children, Prof. Chaplin resigned his position in Japan in 1882, receiving the Imperial order of "Meiji" of Japan in recognition of his distinguished services.

On arrival in this country he became engineer of construction for the New York & New England Railroad, then constructing its double tracks from Franklin, Mass., to Hartford, Conn. In September, 1883, he accepted the appointment of Professor of Mathematics in Maine College, New York, from which place he was appointed July, 1885, Professor of Engineering in Harvard University. During the six years he has occupied this position he has been dean of the Lawrence Scientific School, which has during his administration more than quadrupled its number of students and has become one of the most progressive and successful departments of the University. For the past three years he has been chairman of the Parietal Committee of the faculty.

AMONG THE BROKERS.

A Dull Market—Stocks Sold and Prices Obtained To-Day.

Business on the Mining Exchange was even duller than usual, not a single share of stock changing hands.

Elizabeth opened at $1.52½ bid, $1.60 asked. Subsequently the bidding rose to $1.55 and sellers dropped their figures to $1.57½, but no sales were made.

There were no quotations on Bimetallic but it was rumored that a transfer of 100 shares had been made privately at $35.

Granite Mountain was somewhat stronger, being $20.00 bid, with offers at $20.50.

American and Nettie was firm at 50c bid, but holders declined to sell lower than 55.

Mickey Breen was offered at 50c but no bids higher than 30 could be obtained.

The Title of the Ruler of Japan.

From the Japanese Weekly Mail.

A question that led to some controversy a few years ago has been raised again by the Mainichi Shimbun, the questson of the proper title to be employed by foreigners in writing of the ruler of Japan. The Mainichi observes that in almost every country some special term is used to designate the sovereign. Sometimes these terms are virtually translations of the word "emperor"—as, for example, "Czar" and "Kaiser"—sometimes they are terms pecular to the people of the country and unintelligible in the mouths of strangers—as, for example, "Shah" and "Mikado." Our contemporary adds that when Viscount Yenomoto represented Japan at the Russian Court, he pointed out that the title "Mikado" was only suitable for use by Japanese subjects towards their sovereign, and that it was not a proper title to insert in official documents, the only correct term in regard to the latter being "Emperor," or its equivalent in the language of the document. This is precisely the point made by us some years ago. It led to the most curious rejoinders. Some critics pretended to think that "Mikado" was to be ruled out of the Japanese language altogether, and asked whether Mr. Griffis had violated etiquette in calling his book "The Mikado's Empire," or Mr. H. Norman in heading one of his letters "Mikado Land." Others lashed themselves into a state of spurious indignation over the idea that in denying the propriety of the term "Mikado" in foreign official documents the Japanese were breaking away from their old traditions and substituting borrowed pinchbeck for the pure metal of national individuality. All this silly persiflage did duty for argument among a certain class of writers, able at least to claim that they were not wider of the mark than the few who asserted that whether "Mikado" were right or wrong, it had become customary and must remain so. After all, it is very questionable whether people that persist in using an improper title when they know its impropriety do not injure themselves a great deal more than they injure those to whom the title is addressed. There is an undoubted right of choice in all matters of which the law takes no cognizance. It is not a penal offense to persist in the ignorant employment of incorrect nomenclature, and those that prefer to do so are free to enjoy the privilege.

Photography and Crime.

From the London Times.

The exhibition of the Photographic Society of Great Britain, which opens to the public this morning, is of great interest, both from the artistic and the scientific point of view. Dr. P. Jeserich, a German, has devoted his attention to the development of photography as a means of assisting the administration of the law. The screen which contains Dr. Jeserich's plates is one of the chief curiosities of the exhibition. He has shown, by enlarging photographs taken upon sensitized plates, that it is possible to detect certain kinds of forgery in the most unimpeachable way; for example, where a figure or a word has been altered—and this is one of the commonest kinds of forgery—the different inks employed appear in the plate in quite different colors. Similiarly where a name has first been written in pencil and then traced over in ink, however carefully the pencil marks have been erased, some faint traces of the plumbago are sure to remain in the interstices of the paper, and these are revealed in the magnified photograph. Dr. Jeserich's photographs of hair and of pure and impure blood, before and after treatment with reducing agents, are also most curious, and several stories are told of the use that has been made of them in murder trials in Germany.

"WHAT CAN WE DO!"

Tolstoi Preaches His Gospel of Love With the Russian Famine as a Text.

Some literary person of St. Petersburg, no doubt an ardent admirer of Tolstoi, wrote to the shoemaker, author and nobleman for advice. "What shall we do to help the starving peasants?" inquired this person. Tolstoi answered at length:

"I wish with all my heart," wrote the Count, "that I could express what I think and feel on this question of the famine. I think and feel, in brief, that the famine exists and can but increase, but that a famine cannot be overcome by collecting alms and by distributing bread to those in need of it." After reviewing the social conditions which have produced this and other famines in Russia, he says:

"I think it is necessary that we use all our powers to combat these primal causes of famine, but to ask aid of the Government and to take up collections are entirely useless proceedings and can have only pernicious results. To take up collections! You will always find ready for that sort of thing good-natured persons—persons who live without ever giving a thought to the people unless it be to misunderstand or despise them. But they are suddenly seized by a frenzy of pity for their dear brothers in distress. Oh, yes! these people are very responsive to the call of the collections.

"I think one cannot suddenly turn to good works because there is a famine, for doing good is a thing of yesterday and the day before, to-morrow and the day after, famine or no famine. There is but one remedy against famine. It is necessary that men should give themselves as far as possible to good works at all times. The good work does not consist in giving bread to him that hungers, but in loving the hungry and assisting them. It is more important to love than to give bread, for one may give bread without loving, but one may not love without giving bread.

"I am writing this less for you than for those persons to whom I find myself so often opposed on this subject, who assert that to collect alms and to distribute them is a good work without being able to see that a good work is a work of love only and that a work of love is a work of sacrifice. Therefore, to your question: 'What shall be done?' I reply: 'Let the spirit of love for one another be born in the heart of men, not love because of famine, but love above all and at all times.' But it seems to me this never could be done by writing a book which would touch the hearts of the rich. Write it, if God will permit you. For myself I should be most happy if God should order me to write it."

Hungry for Statistics.

From the Detroit Free Press.

He was such a smart-looking tramp that the woman in the back yard, when he appeared, thought he was an agent of some sort.

"Good morning, ma'am," he said glibly, taking off his hat.

"I don't want to buy anything to-day," she replied, busying herself with a clothes'line

"I'm glad of that, ma'am," he chirped, "for I've got nothing to sell."

"Ain't you an agent of some kind?" she inquired, her woman's curiosity getting the better of her.

"Thank a gracious Heaven, ma'am, I'm not, he replied fervently.

"What are you, then?" and she began to back and fill.

"I'm a collector, ma'am.

"We don't owe anything," she said nervously.

"You should be grateful for that, ma'am, but you are mistaken in me again; I'm not that kind of a collector."

"No?"

"No, ma'am. I'm a collector of vital statistics."

"Going to take the census again?" she inquired anxiously.

"Wrong again, ma'am. It's only plain, everyday vital statistics I want."

"What do you mean?"

"Vital statistics, ma'am; vital statistics; bread and meat, and perhaps pie or cold puddin'' ma'am, to put it in the vernacular. That's the only vital statistics I'm after, and they're very vital, ma'am, for I haven't seen one for twenty-four hours."

"Oh," she exclaimed with a sigh of relief, and he went away loaded with statistics.

One Definition of a Promoter.

From the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

They stopped a great financier on Third street yesterday noon as he was walking along with bowed head, figuring, perhaps, on the value of securities he had taken for the last loan made, and perhaps on the time it would take him personally to pay off the national debt. It looked as though it might bankrupt seven banks if his train of thought was interrupted, but one of the young men was the son of an old friend, so he took the interruption in good part, and for a moment let the banks take their chances with the unfeeling world.

"What's a promoter?" asked the young man who had stopped him.

"Um—ah—a promoter," he said, in his superior way. "A promoter is—ah—a man who—ah—promotes."

"Promotes what?" asked the young man.

By this time the financier had got his mind off of one or two of the banks and centered it on the question.

"Great enterprises, my boy," he said, patronizingly. "A promoter is a man who takes hold of a great scheme and pushes it through. He secures investors, shows the advantages of— But why do you want to know?"

"Well, you see," explained the young man, diffidently, "we had a little dispute as to the meaning of the word as it is used at present, and we wanted to have it decided."

"Quite right, quite right." The financier looked his approval. "How did you decide?"

"Why, we haven't decided yet. I bet Jim a small bottle that the best definition of a promoter was 'a man who sells what he hasn't got to a man who doesnt' know what he is getting.'"

The great financier was startled for a moment. Then he said:

"Young man, you come around to my office; I'll find a position for you."

Then, as he was moving away, he said:

"By the way, you win."

WEDDED A GYPSY QUEEN.

John Lynch of Philadelphia Gets a Beautiful Roving Bride.

From the Indianapolis Sentinel.

As weird and picturesque a wedding as was ever celebrated in Indiana, occurred in Bergadine's woods, east of this village, writes a Hanover (Ind.) correspondent. The bride was a queen of a roving band of gypsies, and the groom is a former Philadelphian. Jennie Van Sicklen and John Lynch were married surrounded by all the rites and ceremonies peculiar to the bride's strange people.

Two years ago Lynch was making maney in Philadelphia as a butcher. He had built up a good custom among wealthy people. He was about 26 years old and single. He was then, as now, a good-looking fellow, tall and dignified. Such a one exactly was he as to catch the eye and win the smiles of a gypsy queen. One day Jennie Van Sicklen landed in the city from the old countay. She is a full-blooded nomad. Lynch saw her and was much impressed with her charms, and he threw down the cleaver and butcher-knife, and resolved to marry her. The gypsy girl was only 17 years old then, and immediately she joined a waiting tribe and began the roving journey across the continent. Lynch also went to the band. He held a consultation with the then Queen and became a gypsy by adoption. All these two years he has kept up in the wanderings of these mysterious folk. He has made their bed his bed and their lonely haunts his home. He has begged food with them and shared their meals. But he was always closely devoted to his dusky Jennie. He saw that his woolngs were agreeable and pressed them. Jennie finally consented to become his bride. Recently the young woman was made queen of her large and powerful band. She always was a queen in looks. She is tall, straight and handsome. The ceremony, through Lynch's endeavors, was performed by a Madison clergyman. The queenly bride and her groom were attired in gorgeous gypsy costumes. They were married under a spreading tree on a green sward. Games of all kinds peculiar to the race were followed by a feast that was spread for the merry banqueters.

Lynch will continue to travel with his bride and her folk. They have an elaborate canvas-covered wagon. The interior is fitted up with a handsome couch, a tall mirror, bright carpet and other luxuries and conveniences. Two magnificent white horses draw this stately, royal car.

Franklin's Auto-Epitaph.

From the Weekly Journalist.

The following is an epitaph written by Benjamin Franklin many years before his death:

> The body of
> B. Franklin,
> Printer.
> Like the cover of an old book,
> its contents torn out,
> and stripped of its lettering and gilding,
> lies here food for worms.
> But the work shall not be wholly lost;
> for it will, as he believes, appear once more,
> in a new and more perfect edition,
> corrected and amended
> by the author.

Father and Son.

From Life.

Papa Primus: "You have abused my hospitality, sir, and I shall hold you to account for kissing my new typewriter against her will last night."

Young Secundus: "So she is my accuser, is she?"

Papa Primus: "Yes. What have you to say for yourself."

Young Secundus: "Only this. It was in the dark and she mistook me for you at the time."

BACH, THE MUSICIAN.

How He Made the Village Schoolmaster a Warm Friend.

From the Chicago News.

The great composer of sacred music and court organist of Weimar, Johann Sebastian Bach, while on a journey, arrived late one Saturday night at a village. As the inn was pleasant and inviting and the host well mannered, he concluded to stay over night.

The next morning while at breakfast he heard the church bells ringing. The innkeeper put on his best coat, invited the stranger to accompany him and his wife to church, and praised the minister; but the schoolmaster received more credit. He could play the organ so beautifully that the angels in heaven rejoiced. What the innkeeper, who was also magistrate of the village, said in praise of the organist and organ was an especial stimulus to join the company going from the tavern to the church.

Having arrived at the church, Bach left his companions and made a visit to his colleague at the organ. The organist was not so great a master as the innkeeper had said, but could play passably well, and the farmers were proud of him. Bach, who sat just back of him, looked over the registers of the organ, watched his fingers or shook his head when there was a fault in the bass. The teacher soon noticed the man watching him so intently and addressed him somewhat testily.

"Good friend, it seems that you understand a little about the organ."

"Yes, yes, a little," replied Bach, "alas! only a little."

"So," remarked the schoolmaster, playing away, undisturbedly, "then you may play when church is leaving out. Play whatever you please."

The sermon was ended, the last verse of the hymn sung and the benediction pronounced. The schoolmaster left the organ bench to make room for the other master.

"Well, don't be backward. Play your piece."

At first Bach seemed backward. then he took his place and pulled out the register.

In soft tones the music echoed through the church. The schoolmaster was astonished, but soon wondered more, and as the artist touched the keys his great eyes shone brightly beneath his wavy hair. The schoolmaster stood for a moment as if struck by lightning, then said:

"Friend, you are either an angel from heaven or Bach from Weimar."

"My name is Johann Sebastian Bach," replied the artist; "all my powers and art are used in the service of Him whom the angels praise in their song."

From that day the organ master and the village schoolmaster were the best of friends.

Strength of Southern Timber.

From the Southern Lumberman.

The preliminary results obtained from tests of the strength of the pine timber of the Northwest and that of the Southern States by Prof. Johnson, under the direction of the Agricultural Department, show a marked percentage in favor of Southern timber. "When strength and stiffness are the qualities sought," says Prof. Johnson, "the public will come to value timber not so much by the foot of board measure, as by the resisting power purchased. If one kind of timber is twice as strong as another, why should we not pay twice as much for it when used as columns, joists, bridges, roofs, trestles, beams, floors, frames of structures, and in every place where strength is the end sought? For a given degree of strength we could then use one-half the quantity of that timber which is twice as strong as the other.

The official tests thus far made prove the strength, stiffness and toughness of the long-leaf yellow pine to be 60 to 114 per cent greater than white pine. The significance of this result as showing the superiority of the Southern timber is beginning to be appreciated by builders. The tested strength of Southern oak is equally significant. At a test made at St. Louis last month by Prof. Johnson, a fairly good white beam from Alabama, 6x12 and 13 feet long, broke at a strain of 23,800 pounds. A cull of Alabama af-g noleyellow pine of same dimensions broke at 24,400 pounds. Up to the time of these tests Southern lumber was supposed to be weaker and more brash than that grown in the North. Prof. Johnson was confident that this was not the case, and the actnal tests have determined conclusively the correctness of his opinion.

Lost His Leg in a Bear Fight.

From the San Francisco Daily Report.

Two of the crew of the schooner Marguerite of Seattle met with a severe accident at Port Muller, on the north side of the Alaskan Peninsula. Their names are Thomas Boswell and J. Schieffelin, and they were ashore prospecting for coal. Both were armed with rifles. They came across a bear and both fired. Though badly wounded the animal made a rush at the men, and in the excitement Boswell got a cartridge jammed in his gun. Before Schieffelin could reload his gun the bear was upon them and knocked them down one after the other with a blow from its paw. Boswell tried to get to his feet, but the bear seized him by the leg and crushed it from the knee down. The animal then ran away but returned about ten minutes later, when Schieffelin, who had recovered consciousness, shot it. The two men got back to the schooner and the captain made sail for Ounalaska. It took eight days to get there, and then Surgeon Berry Hill of the Marion amputated Boswell's leg. It is feared that blood poisoning will set in.

Realism in a Maine Theater.

From the Portland Press.

An event occurred at Portland Theater Saturday night that was not down on the bills. The unfortunate victim, innocent of the crime, is wrestling with his emotions prior to the horrible end he expects. The prison doors are thrown open of a sudden and the officers appear to lead him to the guillotine. In the agony of his approaching fate the prisoner cries out, "You shall not lead me to my death," or words to that effect. The audience on this occasion was spellbound, but as the actor shrieked out those words a spectator in the gallery, wrought up to the highest tension, sang out in tones that echoed through the theater:

"No! I'll be d—d if they shall!"

FRAUDS EXPECTED.

Repeating May Be Looked For at the School Board Election.

PLANS IN PREPARATION TO HELP OUT SOME OF THE CANDIDATES.

Necessity for Police Vigilance in Certain of the Districts—Candidate Hild of the Eighth District Refuses to Pull Out—Controversy Over the Legality of Democratic District Nominations.

Frauds will be attempted at the coming school election, and nothing but the strictest police vigilance will prevent repeating and ballot-box stuffing. Reports are afloat to-day, and some of them bear every impress of truth that repeaters are to be carted from one district to another provided with slips containing the names on which they are to offer votes. One of the schemes, which was perfected last night at a saloon near the Four Courts, was to-day unfolded to a POST-DISPATCH representative. A member of the present School Board, with an unsavory record, who seeks re-election as a district candidate, met by appointment a member of the Hoodlum faction of the Republican party and closed a deal for one hundred repeaters. The committeeman in question represents a ward which does not elect a district director at the approaching election, and as he is fighting the Silk Stocking at-large ticket he finds that he has a big vote he can employ to his own gain in an outside district. He has, it appears, gotten possession of copies of the registration list in the district he is to use his men, and all he has to do is to get the repeaters in the right precinct to cast their fraudulent ballots. There are other candidates running in the same district and they declare that trouble will follow when it comes to the delivery of the fraudulent votes.

Another report is that a notorious character in the Fifteenth Ward has agreed to raise a gang of repeaters to assist another director seeking re-election. The same person has done such work in the past and in the words of one of his assistants, "he is a daisy when it comes to getting the push in line." From the reports afloat it is evident that repeating and stuffing can be looked for, particularly in the Ninth and Eleventh Districts. The Ninth District is made up of the Fifteenth and Seventeenth Wards, and is now represented by Director Cudmore, while the Eleventh, which is represented by Director Bosley, is composed of the Nineteenth and Twenty-first Wards.

LEGAL OR ILLEGAL.

At to-morrow night's special meeting of the School Board an opinion is expected from Attorney Stark respecting the nomination made by the Democratic delegates in the Second, Eighth, Eleventh and Fourteenth districts. These candidates have been certified by the Central Committeemen in these districts as regular Democratic nominations, though the general convention held Saturday at Uhrig's Cave voted down the proposition to make partisan nominations in that gathering. "Sideshow" conventions, as they are termed, were afterwards held by the delegates from the Second, Eighth, Eleventh and Fourteenth Districts. Considerable opposition has developed to the acceptance of these candidates as Democratic nominees, and much interest is accordingly centered in the outcome. As these candidates have other petitions before the board containing the requisite number of signatures their names will go on the official ballot even though it is decided not to place them in the regular Democratic group. Chairman Estes is of the opinion that the nominations made by the delegates in those districts are regular and has so expressed himself. The impression prevails, however, that the board will not classify them under the Democratic heading, but will place them under the caption "nomination by electors."

WILL NOT PULL OUT.

This morning a committee composed of W. V. Wolcott, Mark R. Chartrand and Casper Kraleman, representing the Silk Stocking Republican Committee, waited on Louis Hild, one of the candidates in the Eighth District, and requested him to withdraw from the School Board contest in the interest of Thomas J. Burke, the Republican candidate in that district. Mr. Hild answered emphatically that he would not and the committee left without having accomplished its object. This committee was appointed at the meeting last night on the suggestion of Committeeman Schoenhorst of the Fourteenth Ward. He said that if Mr. Hild could be induced to withdraw Burke could easily defeat School Director O'Connell and A. J. Shumate, who are running in the same district. In the discussion that followed Internal Revenue Collector Wenneker was criticised on the theory that he was responsible for Mr. Hild's candidacy. The Eighth District is composed of the Fourteenth and Sixteenth Wards, and Mr. Hild is only one of the quartette of candidates living in the Sixteenth. He was induced to run by the North St. Louis Improvement Association, and Collector Wennecker is one of the principal officers of this organization.

Mr. Hild was seen to-day and said: "I am in the race to stay, and will be there until the votes are counted. I was asked to run by the people of the Sixteenth Ward before there was any talk of partisan nominations. A petition was circulated and my nomination duly filed. I have been asked several times to withdraw by the supporters of Mr. Burke, and some of the men backing Shumate also seems anxious to have me out of the race. When these Burke people told me that he could be elected and O'Connell defeated if I drew out, I just told them that if Mr. Burke could convince me he was stronger than myself I would withdraw. We had a meeting and we agreed to appoint two men each, and let the four agree upon another. Mr. Burke agreed to this and so did I, but when his two men got together they would not agree upon anybody for the fifth member. My representatives were Mr. Wenneker and Mr. Zelle of the Improvement Association. I propose now to stay in the race until it closes."

Mr. Hild conducts the Laclede Hotel barber shop and has lived in St. Louis for a number of years.

IT WAS A LIVELY MEETING.

PROTESTS PRESENTED TO THE SCHOOL BOARD COMMITTE ON ELECTIONS.

As was expected, the meeting of the School Board Committee on Elections last evening proved to be an exceedingly lively affair. Before it was called to order by Chairman Sheehan the room was filled with candidates, politicians and other spectators. The Silk-Stocking committee was represented by W. V. Walcott who wanted the committee to give the Bain wing of the party a representative in each polling place. It was finally settled on a resolution, offered by Director McEntire to give both parties a representative in each polling place. The representatives will have to secure credentials from their respective committees, and these will have to be countersigned by Secretary James G. Player of the School Board.

The meeting became exceedingly animated when W. H. Healey and Dr. W. J. Wait, candidates against Bosley in the Eleventh District, presented protests against some of the judges appointed by the committee, it is claimed on Bosley's recommendation. Healy charged that one of the judges in the Ninety-seventh District had been appointed by Bosley purposely to stuff the ballot-box. He made other serious charges against the judge in question, and the committee decided to appoint another in his stead. Several names were suggested, but Healy continued to object. Finally Frederick Baehr was selected and Healy said he was satisfactory.

All this made Director Bosley, who was present, very indignant, and taking the floor, he denounced Healy as a ballot box stuffer himself and Healy turned pale with anger and the air looked squally for a time. A motion proposed by Director Bus was then carried not to make any further changes in the judges and clerks originally selected.

A protest was next submitted from John C. Fleming, the Democratic City Committeeman from the Twenty-first Ward, who is also one of Street Commissioner Murphy's principal district superintendents. He protested against the placing of Mr. Healy's name on the official ballot as the Democratic candidate. He set forth in his affidavit that the Twenty-first Ward, which is a part of the Eleventh District, had not been consulted, and that the Nineteenth Ward, which had nominated Healy, had no power to make the nomination for the district. The notarial seal of William P. Macklin was affixed to the paper. Assistant City Counsellor Macklin has taken an active interest in the Eleventh District contest in the interest of his friend, Director Bosley.

Another protest was filed against the acceptance of A. J. Shumate as the Democratic candidate in the Eighth or O'Connell District. It was filed by Director O'Connell himself and stated that those who nominated Schumate had no power to select him as the Democratic candidate. The protests were referred to Secretary Player and Attorney Stark.

BOSLEY'S PULL.

School Director Bosley, in addition to having most of the judges and clerks of his own selection has another pull in his race for re-election. It is the "Noonan push," as it is called, headed by Committeman John C. Fleming in the Twenty-first Ward. Candidates C. G. Penney and M. Healy, who are also Democrats, object to this interference and the Mayor and Street Commissioner Murphy may be asked to keep the city employes from aiding Bosley's plans for re election. Fleming is one of the District Superintendents in the Street Department and a large number of the men working under him live in the Eleventh district.

Dr. W. J. Wait, who is running on the Republican ticket in the same district, counts on receiving a large Democratic vote that is beyond the control of even the Noonan or Butler factions. With the Democratic factions at work in the district election day, there will be no lack of excitement.

Two Witnesses Settle a Dispute at the Four Courts.

A LIVELY SCENE IN THE CORRIDOR THIS MORNING.

"Punch" Hackett Agrees to Marry May Thomas, the Girl He Betrayed—Struck With a Soup Bone—Held for a Robbery in Springfield, Mo.—General Police News.

The Four Courts corridor leading to the Court of Criminal Correction was this morning the scene of a sudden rough-and-tumble fight that proved unusually interesting to the appreciate crowd gathered as usual about that particular spot. The combatants were James Dorsey and Martin Hines, two men who had been called as witnesses in the case, then pending at the three Cs. The two met in the corridor, and while waiting to be called to the witness stand they fell to comparing notes as to the testimony they proposed to give in the case. From that arose a further discussion concerning the merits of the case itself, and from that discussion there developed a difference of opinion which soon caused a lively and noisy quarrel between the two witnesses. This interest in the case was so deep that the disagreement was made personal, and the quarrel had not lasted longer than a minute, when a lively shoulder blow from one of the disputants marked the opening of actual hostilities. In a moment the two men had clinched and were swaying to and fro in a Græco-Roman grip, which was only loosened whenever opportunity arose for a good use of the fists. The corridor fortunately was also the waiting place of several police officers who were to appear as witnesses in some of the three C's cases, and they at once closed on the two belligerent witnesses and soon separated them, to the great disgust of the onlookers whose usual court matinee had been so pleasantly brightened up by the "scrap." As soon as the two witnesses were separated they were conveyed down-stairs, where cross-charges of disturbing the peace were preferred against them, and they were locked up. The development from witnesses to principals in a Four Courts case had been swift and bloody, and was not relished by either of the hot-blooded pugilists. But it was a great treat for the three C's regular congregation.

Held on Suspicion.

About 8 o'clock last night a young man, who is known as George Wilson, alias George Smith, went into the store of the Central Loan Co., 204 North Fourth street, and tried to sell a lady's gold watch. Mr. J. A. Brice, manager of the company, thought he recognized Wilson as the same man who sold him a lot of stolen revolvers some time ago and refused to buy the watch. He called in Officer George Smith and Sergt. McNamee, who followed Wilson to Ninth and Pine streets and arrested him. The revolvers Wilson sold some months ago were afterwards identified as the same weapons which were stolen from the Springfield Hardware Co. of Springfield, Mo., whose place had been burglarized a few days before the revolvers were offered for sale. Wilson is also supposed to be the person who sold a lot of guns to the Burnett Loan Co. about one year ago, which had been stolen from a store in Louisville, Ky. He was placed in the hold-over until the Springfield authorities are heard from, as it is thought he is wanted there.

John Thomas Brady's Troubles.

John Thomas Brady is again in trouble. This time the charge is malicious destruction of property. Mme. Aggie Meyers, keeper of a house of ill-repute on Thirteenth and Pine streets, called on Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep this morning and said John Thomas had destroyed her front door. He called on her last evening and made himself very obnoxious, she alleges, and she made him leave the house. In a spirit of revenge he threw a stone, so she charges, through her stained glass door, doing about $25 damage. John Thomas Brady is the saloon-keeper at 1216 Pine street, in whose place Ashley Jones of Little Rock, Ark., was robbed and killed one month ago. He was arrested on the warrant and gave bond for his appearance when wanted. He had no sooner given bond than he applied for a warrant charging his bartender, Daniel Cusick, with robbery. Cusick, he claimed, robbed him of $11 yesterday by tapping the till when he was relieved from duty. The bartender was arrested a few days ago for refusing to return a customer change for a $10 bill which the man tendered in payment for a 5-cent drink. He was bailed out at the time by one of Brady's friends and is again in the toils on charges preferred by his employer. There is a charge of robbery against a former bartender of Brady's who is said to have robbed a young St. Louis lawyer of a watch while in the saloon one night in a drunken sleep.

Stole Fall Illumination Gas Pipe.

Owen Sheridan, a youth with proclivities for taking property not belonging to him, was arrested by officer Kohring yesterday on a charge of stealing a section of gas pipe belonging to the Street Illuminating Committee and he was locked up at the Four Courts. The pipe is valued at only $2 but a warrant for petit larceny was obtained this morning and the members of the committee say they intend to prosecute and punish the offender, as a large quantity of gas pipe, globes, jets and brass clamps have been stolen from the work rooms and yards where the fixtures are put together and they intend to put a stop to the petty thieving by making an example. Boys have been stealing globes and selling them about town for trifling sums and the committee have placed detectives on the trail of the thieves in the hopes of capturing and punishing them.

Agreed to Marry Her.

William alias Punch Hackett, a young man who has an unenviable reputation in the Police Department, appears before the public to-day as a Benedict. Two weeks ago he was arrested on a charge of enticing a female, under age, away from home for immoral purposes. The girl is Mary Thomas, a miss about 18 years of age, who came to this city several months ago from De Soto, Mo., and met Hackett. He seduced her, she claims, and then led her astray. To-day he agreed to marry her and at a late hour this afternoon the couple were patching up an agreement in Judge Claiborne's private room. The ceremony will be performed this evening, but if it is not Hackett will be remanded to jail.

Cases Before Judge Claiborne.

In the Court of Criminal Correction this morning two jail and one Work house sentence was imposed. August Schaeffer was sentenced to jail for fifteen days on being found guilty of stealing a pitchfork from Robert McElroy on Oct. 19. William McGregory was sentenced to jail for ten days for stealing $5 from W. E. Gibson of 2838 Manchester road on Oct. 14. William Butler was found guilty of an assault to kill upon Bud Hicks of 4320 Cottage avenue Oct. 9, and was sent to the Workhouse for three months.

Struck With a Soup Bone.

William F. Miller and Wm. M. Magnett, two waiters employed in the Commercial Restaurant, 213 Chestnut street, got into a quarrel about 7:30 o'clock this morning, and in the fight which followed Miller struck Magnett with a soup bone and cut a severe and lengthy gash in his scalp. Miller was arrested and Magnett was taken to the Dispensary.

Embezzlement Charged.

A warrant was issued this morning charging Charles A. Warner with embezzlement by bailee. Louis C. Hazard, a shoe manufacturer, said he gave Warner a case of shoes valued at $35 on May 14 to sell and later he discovered that Warner had given a fictitious name and address and disappeared with the shoes.

Sacred Heart Festival.

The second night of the Sacred Heart festival was a big success. The big canvas house was jammed and a splendid time was enjoyed by all present. To-night will close the affair, and special preparations have been made to entertain the largest crowd of the week, which will, in all probability, be present.

CARONDELET NEWS.

Parental Objections Cause the Postponement of a Wedding.

Some few days ago it was announced in German circles that a young couple, both of whom are well known, were to be wedded Wednesday evening, Oct. 21. Every preparation was made for the event, which promised to be a very stylish affair. While the bride and her maids of honor were busily engaged in preparing their gowns, etc., for the wedding day, the groom suddenly made his appearance and calmly made it known that he had postponed the wedding. If a thunderbolt had struck the house and shattered it to pieces it could have had no such shocking effect as the words uttered by the intended groom. Indeed, the bride was so surprised that it was some moments before she could find enough strength to ask the meaning of the delay. The young man informed his intended bride why the postponement was necessary. The wedding day came and passed. Those who knew the young people intimately watched for their appearance at the church where the wedding ceremonies were to take place. They stood outside of the closed doors and wondered why it was that the young couple did not come, and wondered what caused the delay. The bells did not ring forth with that ring that tells that some happy event has or is to take place. It is said that parental objections led to the postponement of the wedding for a week or ten days. When the young man was seen this morning by a POST-DISPATCH reporter, he said: "The wedding will come off in a few days. Owing to reasons which I am not at liberty to speak of now the wedding was postponed. It seems as though I have been suffering under a hallucination of some kind. I can hardly remember anything that has taken place within the past three days; but it will be all right in a few days."

Company H, Carondelet Guards, N. G. M., will give a reception and ball in the near future.

In the Police Court this morning Police Justice Meegan fined Herman Beyer $50, by default, for disturbing the peace.

The Carondelet Citizens' Committee will hold a special meeting this evening for the purpose of petitioning the Board of Police Improvements to expedite the work of grading Broadway from the car stables south to Filmore street. The thoroughfare is in a most deplorable condition, especially the east side of the road. The Work-house gang has been at work for some time grading the street, but as they are so slow, there is no prospect of the street being opened for some time.

At the meeting of South End Council, No. 112, American Fraternal Circle, held last evening, a committee of five was appointed to make arrangements for a dress ball, to be given some time next month.

About 5 o'clock last evening two negroes attempted to steal some apples out of a farmer's wagon on Minnesota avenue and Dover street. The farmer stopped his team, and dismounting with his whip in hand attempted to chastise the boys. But in this he was mistaken. Instead of chastising them they turned on him and gave him quite a severe thrashing. The countryman took advantage of an opportunity, jumped into his wagon and drove off.

A. A. Churchill brought suit against Charles H. M. Jackson in Justice Meegan's Court this morning to regain a piece of property that Churchill alleges Jackson is occupying illegally.

The property in question is located at No. 4324 Cottage avenue. Churchill rented the property to Jackson for a term of years. The term expired Sept. 24, 1891. Jackson, so it is said, absolutely refuses to move out and when asked to pay rent refused to do that also. Hence the suit. The plaintiff Churchill wants Jackson ejected from the premises and to pay him $15 for rental. Judge Meegan, after hearing the evidence took the case under advisement.

The Canadian Pacific has dropped east-bound rates on bids, from St. Paul to the seaboard, to 45 cents, or 7 cents below the rate via Chicago. A Life Interest in a Burial Plot.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A well-known lawyer of this city had been retained by a maiden lady to defend her in a certain suit which had been brought against her by some of the co-heirs of her father. No fee had been stipulated, and when the time came for the payment of the fee the lady handed over to the attorney his remuneration in the shape of a document duly transferring to him the usufruct for life of a half lot in a graveyard.

The astonished lawyer attempted to explain to his client that the right to usufruct ceased with the beginning of its benefits, that he could not possibly find any use for the tomb until he died, and that then he would have no right to use it. He waxed eloquent upon the worthlessness of life usufructs of graves, mausoleums, and tomb space, assured his client that he had no desire to settle on a twenty-foot grass plot, and said he was sorry to say that he would have to refuse the proffered fee.

The lady threw the document upon the table, told the lawyer he could take that or nothing, and left the office in a high dudgeon. The attorney calmly accepted the situation and framed the usufruct. It may be seen now adorning a conspicuous spot upon the wall of the attorney's sanctum.

THE looters of the school fund must be shut out.

A FAIR ballot, a big vote and an honest count is all that is needed for the public schools.

THE indictment against the school boodle ring is big enough, but it is not yet complete.

THE reciprocity clause in Mr. BLAINE'S letter is as good a Democratic campaign document as his famous remark about the McKinley bill.

A REVEREND gentleman in the Methodist Council declared that a Christian millionaire should be an impossibility. It should be very easy for a millionaire to be a Christian, but it is doubtful if a Christian can make a million.

WHEN the meeting between Col. ARMSTRONG and Col. BROADHEAD over the Jefferson Barracks question, which the Globe-Democrat is trying to bring about, does take place there will be a clash of glasses and a rush of liquid fire.

HELEN GOUGAR is making it very warm for MCKINLEY. Her speech in which she told of her visit to the Piqua Tin-Plate Works and of what befell her there is a thorough exposure of that "fake," as she calls it. As a stump speaker Mrs. GOUGAR surpasses Gov. CAMPBELL.

A REFUSAL of the Election Committee of the School Board to give fair representation to all parties at the polls would be equivalent to a confession of willingness to have the returns cooked. We do not believe that the committee would attempt to make a star-chamber proceeding of a public election.

A YOUNG lady of Covington, Tenn., wrote a prize essay on "The Model Husband," and when a Minneapolis merchant read it he saw at once that the only way in which her ideal could be realized was by marrying him, so he offered and was accepted. What magnificent ego—conciousness of superiority Minneapolis men must have.

MR. BLAINE'S last letter, in which he praises the reciprocity provisions of the tariff law, is not consistent with his passionate declarations concerning the home market three years ago. But as Mr. BLAINE has said that protection is not a principle, but a policy, consistency is not expected. It is very convenient for politicians to have a policy—especially if there is no principle in it.

THE American protectionists see plainly that the tariff levied upon imports by foreign Governments is a heavy tax upon their peoples, but are unable to discover a tax upon Americans in the tariff imposed upon imports in this country. They are full of pity for the poor foreigners, but have not a tear for the burdened Americans. Maj. MCKINLEY and his friends are badly affected with far-sightedness.

ONE of the consequences of the systematic corruption recently revealed in Canada is the unmistakable sentiment developed for political union with the United States. Hitherto this sentiment has taken no hold on the people, but has been confined to a coterie of doctrinaires, who have discussed annexation as a subject of speculation, but not of thought. The commercial isolation of Canada, together with the breakdown of the government, has brought matters to a head, and union is now within the circle of probabilities. It is the goal toward which events are tending, and the century may close on a continent united north of the Rio Grande.

UNLAWFUL DUMPING.

Under the common law of easements and riparian rights, Chicago can discharge her sewage into the waters of the St. Lawrence but not into the waters of any tributary of the Mississippi. The latter stream is sufficiently charged with the sewage of its own immense valley, and adding to its natural burden the sewage of the largest city in the valley of the St. Lawrence would be an outrage that the whole Mississippi Valley population ought to resist.

The proposition to dilute this Chicago sewage with a sufficient flow of water from one of the lakes that supply the St. Lawrence with water, to improve the navigation of the Illinois River, is on its face an attempt to put down opposition with false promises. It is a scientifically attested fact that those lakes are becoming shallower every year, and Chicago is not going to further imperil the utility of her Eastern waterway by diverting enough water from Lake Michigan to make a navigable stream from the lake to the Mississippi, nor will she consent to a large diversion of water from Lake Erie to improve the navigation of the Ohio, as the Pittsburgers propose. A canal across the "divide" carrying enough Lake Michigan water to discharge her sewage into the Illinois River, and spread it over all the bottom lands reached by the enlarged overflow, is all that the people along the Illinois River will get from Chicago in return for letting her dump her offal, ordure and other filth on their land, to rot there, poisoning the air they breathe and filling their homes with pestilence.

If the Illinois River people do not stand on their riparian rights and in their State courts successfully resist the imposition of an easement to which Chicago has no right by natural or human laws, the States and communities on the banks of the Mississippi should apply to Congress and the United States courts for the protection to which they are entitled as riparian owners. Chicago has no more right to divert her sewage from the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi than she would have to empty the great lakes into our valley and submerge vast bodies of our land without our consent.

PUBLIC OPINION VS. BURLESQUERS.

The women of Hiawatha, Kan., are engaged in a frantic attempt to put down a so-called leg show, which they claim threatens to demoralize the town. They tried to get the Council to prohibit the entertainment, but the Council, the members of which probably wanted to test the demoralizing effect of the display, refused to do it.

The indignant women destroyed the posters, and were considering the advisability of spoiling the beauty of the fair burlesquers, when wiser counsel prevailed and they decided to try the effect of public opinion. The fiat has gone forth in Hiawatha that the man who goes to see the burlesque shall be an outcast and can no longer enjoy the society of the ladies, but will be shut off from the light of their smiles and the charm of their companionship forever. This is a terrible ukase and the strain upon Hiawatha's men must be awful. If it means anything it should prove a frost for the burlesque company. The man who would exchange the favor of the fair sex and 365 days of possible bliss for a few evenings of gilt edged dazzle would be a driveling idiot. The town ladies should win against the visiting burlesquers hands down.

Of course, it may occur to some of the sly dogs of Hiawatha that the ladies will not refuse to forgive repentant sinners, especially if they happen to be handsome fellows with winning ways, and thus public opinion may not have a chance to do its perfect work. Still the test is an interesting one, and the black flag is out for "display shows" in Hiawatha. The ladies of that place have risen above the ax, club and mob methods of some of their reform sisters, and have chosen the true democratic way of abolishing evils. They deserve success.

THE People's party having apparently got control of the Farmers' Alliance of Illinois, a split in that organization may be looked for in the near future. The party of PEFFER is too radical in its paternalism to be satisfactory to the self-respecting wing of the farmers' movement and a realignment is inevitable. There are only two principles of political action and sooner individuals adopt one or the other.

THE most stupendous piece of assurance which this city has seen for a long time is the action of School Directors BOSLEY, CUDMORE and O'CONNOR in seeking reelection after it has been shown that they have used their offices as private snaps and have violated the laws and defied public opinion to enrich themselves out of contracts gained through their own votes and pulls as members of the School Board.

CONSTITUTIONAL defects are offered to account for the frequent revolutions in Central and South American countries. It is an explanation which does not explain. When the Spanish Americans shall have been disciplined into self-control they will be fit for self-government. In this they are repeating the experience of all free people who have won their liberty by long and arduous struggle not only with their tyrants, but with their own weak and unformed wills. When the mixed races south of us undergo this process of discipline they will quit being revolutionists. Until then they will be at the mercy of every courtly savage who for the moment succeeds in controlling "troops."

BY the action of the Erfurt Congress the Socialists of Germany have abandoned their revolutionary policy and settled down to a policy of orderly reform. In other words they are no longer Socialists, but Constitutional Radicals, working towards the Socialist ideal. In their new role they will no doubt do a useful work and contribute materially to real progress.

Accepts the Responsibility.

From the New York WORLD.

No man can have such influence with the Administration as Commissioner Raum seems to enjoy, unless the Administration itself accepts his offenses as its own. So long as Raum remains at the head of the Pension Office Mr. Harrison makes himself responsible for the corruptions, and some of them are the meanest in the annals of Washington. There will be a rattling of the dry bones when a committee of the people's Congress shall investigate Mr. Raum's department.

Mr. Blair's Certificate.

From the Boston Herald.

That is a very remarkable certificate of character which President Harrison gives to ex-Senator Blair, and which the recipient has seen fit to give to the public for their edification and enlightenment. It may occur to some people that a formal declaration from the President of the United States, setting forth that, after inquiry, he has found nothing to reflect on the New Hampshire statesman's character, is one of those things that a sensitive man would prefer to have left unsaid, as Mr. Punch would say. However, so long as it pleases Mr. Blair, nobody else has a right to find fault with this sort of treatment.

Alliterative Unfortunates.

From the Chicago News.

Devotees of superstition will take a genuine professional pleasure in noting the alliterative character of the names of the unfortunate politicians, Balmaceda, Barillas, Bogran, Barrios and Boulanger. It will not disturb them in the least that Blaine, Bismarck and other notables in the same alliterative predicament are apparently well and prosperous, for nothing can alter a superstitious individual's faith in his superstition. It is only when his eerie theories are apparently justified and substantiated by an actual fact that he begins to distrust. The fun in being superstitious lies in getting yourself hoodwinked completely and frequently.

How It Was Done.

From the Philadelphia Record.

According to estimates now made at Washington the yearly reduction of revenue from customs under the new tariff will be about $40,000,000. The falling off from the single item of sugar overruns this sum by $15,000,000. This serves to show the drift of the McKinley legislation. Under cover of the repeal of sugar duties, rates have been advanced on wool, glass, tinplate, lead, wire, etc., etc., according to the pressure brought to bear by persons interested in procuring favoring legislation.

Wires In and Wires Out.

From the New York WORLD.

A year ago Mr. McKinley could hardly find words strong enough to express his contempt and horror for cheapness. "Cheap clothes make a cheap man!" he cried. Now he is doing his utmost to prove that his tariff has actually brought about this very cheapness. Thus he "wires in and wires out and leaves the matter still in doubt whether the snake that made the track was going in or coming back."

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Careless Firemen.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Returning from an alarm of fire one of the engines stopped at the north crossing on Broadway and Walnut and the fireman cleaned out the furnace, leaving the red-hot coals on the crossing.

The wind blowing at the time sent the sparks far and wide. Why is this permitted? Why such carelessness on the part of men whose duty it is to protect us from fires and not to leave hot coals on the street to start a fire?

WALNUT STREET.

Call the Streets.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you please lend your influence to work a reform in the management of the conductors' duties of the Fourth and Chouteau avenue line? In the evening when the cars are crowded it is almost an impossibility for the passengers to tell how far they have progressed on their homeward journey. A few of the conductors of this line call out the names of the streets, but the great majority of them do not. It may or may not be the rule of the company to have the conductors cry out the names of the streets, but if there is such a rule it is seldom enforced. For the convenience of the traveling public they ought to be made to call out the name of every crossing after they get west of Broadway. Please call the attention of the street railway managers to this needed reform, and much oblige a host of

PATRONS.

Electric Fans for the Art Gallery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Now that the Ex. is closed until '92 permit me to make through the columns of your most excellent paper a suggestion, which will, if carried out, add greatly to the comfort of its patrons.

One of the greatest attractions of the Ex. is the Art Gallery. We have some very warm weather in September, and the Art Gallery seems to be the warmest place in the building. How many lovers of the beautiful would spend hours before the pictures if it were not for the heat. It is hard to appreciate and be appreciative, and try to keep cool at the same time.

A few electric fans could be placed in each room of the Art Gallery at an expense that would be trifling in comparison with the comfort it would bring.

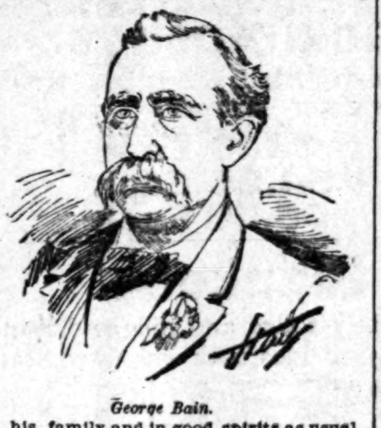
GEORGE BAIN DEAD.

He Died of Heart Disease Early This Morning.

AN UNEXPECTED TERMINATION OF AN EVENTFUL CAREER.

For Twenty Years and More One of the Leading Citizens of St. Louis—The Republican Candidate for Mayor in 1873—A Successful Milling Business Ruined by Repeated Fires—Sketch of His Life.

George Bain died at 2:30 o'clock this morning at his residence, No. 3128 Morgan street, surrounded by the members of his family. For two weeks he had been confined to his bed, and although he was dangerously sick several days last week, there was a marked improvement in his condition on Saturday, and yesterday he seemed to be gaining rapidly and looked so well, in fact, that his son Robert expected that he would be out again in a few days. His mind was clear all the time, and he talked cheerfully and even cracked jokes with some of his old friends who called on him. Mr. Bain's good humor was proverbial and in sickness it did not leave him. Up to within a few minutes of his death he was conversing with his family and in good spirits as usual. He died of heart disease, or at least that is the supposition, the family physician, Dr. I. N. Love, not having arrived as yet at the time the POST-DISPATCH representative left the house this morning. He had been suffering from rheumatism and liver and kidney troubles for some time, and they were doubtless responsible in a measure for his death.



George Bain.

WANTED A QUIET FUNERAL.

Mr. Bain talked of death at times during his sickness and expressed a wish that in the event of it he should be buried as quietly as possible, with only his brothers and sons as pall-bearers, and the other members of his family and perhaps a few other relatives and friends as attendants, and it is in accordance with that wish that the funeral will be strictly private. It will take place from the family residence next Saturday, the time having been decided upon as soon as it was definitely ascertained that his son George would arrive in the city by that time. George was at home a few days ago, but left to attend the unveiling of the Grady monument at Atlanta, which he reported for the United Press, with which he has been connected for a year or more. George knew when he left home that his father was very sick, and was in a measure prepared for the sad news sent him this morning. He telegraphed back immediately that he would start for St. Louis at once and would reach here by the L. & N. road to-morrow (Friday) evening. The other sons are Robert E. M. Bain, the local agent of several Atlantic steamship companies, and Walter H. Bain, who is with Orthwein & Co. There are also two daughters, young ladies attending school.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

George Bain was born at Sterling, Scotland, May 5, 1836, and came to America when a boy of 15 years. He first clerked in a real estate office in Montreal, Canada, and then went to Portland and about 1855, when still in his teens, located in Chicago. He embarked in the grain commission business at once as the junior member of the firm of Clark & Bain. He remained in Chicago nine years and in that time was successively a member of the firms of Geo. Sitz & Co., Hobbe, Oliphant & Co., Gilbert, Updike & Co., Gilbert, and Updike & Fields. He continued his connection with the latter company upon his removal to St. Louis in 1864, and here he became actively associated with the firm of Updike, Field & Co., which afterwards changed to Updike, Bain & Co. At the same time Mr. Bain had an interest in the grain commission business of Kehlor, Updike & Co., New Orleans. Early in the 70's Mr. Bain withdrew from these firms and opened a grain commission business with his brother Will under the firm name of George Bain & Co., and at the same time entered the milling business with Mr. Pegram under the name of Bain & Pegram. They bought the Atlantic Mill on Main and Plum streets and the O'Fallon Mill on Chouteau avenue at the junction of Fourth and Fifth streets.

HIS CAREER AS A MILLER.

It was as a miller that George Bain achieved a national reputation. He was the first man to export American flour to Scotland, and although he lost a dollar a barrel on 80,000 barrels exported, the advertisement brought him a big foreign trade and for ten years or more he was considered one of the greatest of American millers. He was chosen President of the Millers' National Association and the name of George Bain became known throughout the whole country. He was elected President of the Merchants' Exchange, was elected and re-elected a member of the City Council several times and was the Republican candidate for Mayor in 1873 against Joe Brown.

DISASTROUS FIRES.

Mr. Bain was successful in his milling business until he had been burned out several times and he was then forced to give up the Atlantic Mill and let the ownership of it pass into other hands, although he was retained as manager of it for several years longer. The O'Fallon Mill burned out a couple of times, and finally changed hands and was turned into a cracker factory. The building was afterwards bought by the Iron Mountain Railroad Co. and torn down, the company expecting to use the ground for the tracks by which they were to enter the Union Depot from Fourth street and Chouteau avenue. The Atlantic Mill was also twice burned, the first fire having been due to the carelessness of an employe and the second one to a stroke of lightning. The second storm occurred during a big rain storm and an instant after the mill was struck, the whole building was in flames. Some of the employes were burned with the building and others jumped out only to die of their burns at the hospital. It was one of the quickest and hottest fires in the history of the city. The loss was a very serious one to Mr. Bain and he was able to rebuild only with the aid of borrowed money, bonding the new mill to secure the lenders. Then one bad year in the milling business followed another until he was compelled to surrender his mill, which was considered one of the finest in the land. Under a contract with the new owners, Messrs. Fusz & Backer, he was retained as manager of the mill five years, as stated above, or until about two years ago. The name of the mill has since been changed to Regina Mill, in honor of Mr. Fusz's mother, whose name was Regina. Mr. Bain acted as correspondent during the last few years of his life for the Northwestern Miller of St. Paul, and was the regular St. Louis representative of the paper at the time of his death.

HIS POLITICAL CAREER.

Mr. Bain's political career began about the close of the war, when he was elected to the City Council. He sat in that body several terms, and was the author of several measures which became laws, and the only one that didn't have the approval of the best classes as a whole was the famous social evil law. On the merits of that ordinance the better people of the city were divided and although the repeal of the law was afterwards secured, Mr. Bain was always proud of having been the author of it and believed up to the last that the morals of the public were better with than without the social evil ordinance. The question of its re-enactment was submitted to the people in the form of a charter amendment a few years ago, but it failed of adoption, although it received as large a vote as the other ten or twelve amendments that were submitted at the same time, the Socialistic party, which was then very strong in the city, having voted against the whole lot, merely because an amendment recommended by the leaders of that party hadn't been submitted with the rest.

The social evil law had been very unpopular with the clergy of the city and it was due in part to that fact and Mr. Bain's advocacy of the law that he was defeated for Mayor in 1873. A few years ago Mr. Bain was offered the Republican nomination for Congress in the Ninth District and although the old feeling had died out and been forgotten and a Republican nomination at the time seemed equivalent to election, Mr. Bain declined the honor having decided to stick to business, and keep out of politics in future.

But after the expiration of his time as manager of the Regina mill he was again drawn into politics, and at the time of his death was Chairman of the City Central Committee of the Silk Stocking wing of the Republican party. This committee is to meet to-morrow evening to take action on his death. Vice and Acting Chairman Davis will preside.

ON 'CHANGE.

The news of George Bain's death was received on 'Change with expressions of regret and sorrow. It was here that Mr. Bain was best known and most appreciated. He was and had been for years one of the leading members of the Merchants' Exchange. Everybody knew him personally, and everybody liked him. In 1877 he was Vice-President of the Exchange, and the following year succeeded John A. Scudder as President, Messrs. H. C. Haarstick and Craig Alexander being his Vice-Presidents. It is not exaggerating to say that Mr. Bain made one of the best as well as most popular Presidents the Exchange ever had, and its long list of ex-presidents includes a score more of the ablest and most popular members of that body.

Mr. Bain was one of the founders of the Mutual Benefit Society of the Exchange and was the society's Vice-Presidents at the time of his death, as he had been for three years. The society will take suitable action on his death, as will the Exchange itself. Secretary Morgan is now in Chicago on official business for the Exchange, and the news was telegraphed him early this morning. He replied immediately to have the Directors and ex-Presidents of the Exchange meet at 1:15 to-morrow afternoon in the Directors' room to take action on Mr. Bain's death.

OTHER SOCIETIES.

Mr. Bain was a Mason and a Knight Templar, a prominent member of the Scottish Clans, a member of the Legion of Honor and also a member of several other societies, including the Murdoch, Noble and other fishing clubs. Mr. Alex. Smith has the pictures of the members of one of the fishing clubs to which Mr. Bain belonged hanging in his office, and Mr. Smith is now the only one left.

The friends of Mr. Bain will be given an opportunity to view his remains at the family residence, 3128 Morgan street, Saturday morning, between 9 and 11.

BEAUTIFUL BLONDE BEATRICE COLLINS.

No Clue to the Fair Fugitive or Her Burglar Partner.

READING, Pa., Oct. 22.—"Beatrice Collins," the New York counterfeiter, and John Bush, alias John Miller, who escaped from jail here, are still at large, though letters have been sent broadcast for their apprehension. The police do not care so much for Bush, but they want the woman. It is now positively certain that there was some one in the jail who carried her mail for her and communicated with her friends on the outside. When she came to the jail she had diamond jewelry. Some one took this out for her, pawned it and brought her the money. She refused to say what had become of her jewelry. All who have conversed with her describe her as bold and adroit. It is now known that she walked out of the front door of the jail. She arrived at the Reading Railroad depot at 4:15 yesterday morning, already provided with a ticket and got on the 5:05 a. m. train for Philadelphia. She was often asked to tell the story of her past life. She always stated that her mother, who was wealthy would discard and disinherit her if she found out her guilt. The following is published about her here:

Her maiden name was Ada L. Nein and she was a daughter of Mary E. Nein of Brooklyn. At one time she was considered a leader of society in the City of Churches. She lived an apparently happy and contented life and two children were born to her, one girl and one son. She was the wife of Robert Culbertson of Brooklyn from whom she parted early last spring. The story then goes on to say that she was discovered to have a lover. Culbertson engaged two rooms for her away from home, and sent her and her clothing there. The man who led her astray then started her out to get rid of counterfeit money. To this end she came to Reading and owing to her inexperience she was soon apprehended. Last week she sent a letter addressed to the Postmaster of Brooklyn requiring him to "send all mail addressed to Ada Laida Culbertson, Brooklyn, N. Y., to Reading." The Brooklyn authorities in a dispatch received here last night deny the entire story. They say Culbertson cannot be found. The mystery as to her identity is therefore as deep as ever.

Arkansas Bankers.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 22.—The State Bankers' Association elected the following officers yesterday to serve until April, 1892:

President, Col. Logan H. Roots, President of Arkansas Town & Trust Co., Little Rock; Vice-Presidents—First District, S. H. Horner, Cashier Bank of Helena; Second District, A. E. Harris, President Monticello Bank; Third District, W. Y. Foster, President Hempstead County Bank, Hope; Fourth District, W. H. McGee, Cashier Bank of Dardanelle; Fifth District, G. R. Wood, Cashier Citizens' Bank, Van Buren; Sixth District, J. S. Hanford, President Bank of Batesville.

Executive Committee—W. J. Stowers, Bank of Morrilton; W. Worthen, Little Rock; F M. Smith, Bank of Malvern.

Several interesting papers were read. The Committee on Resolutions made a report that congratulated the members on the successful launching of the organization, and the state on the wonderful progress. The report also called for an abundant and stable volume of money. The report was unanimously adopted. A banquet at the Richelieu Hotel last night finished the session. Col. Logan H. Roots made an eloquent reply to the toast, "Arkansas Bankers' Association."

A Conflict of Testimony.

Justice Manning's Court was crowded yesterday afternoon with witnesses in the assault and battery cases of Hyman Specter against M. Bieber, Jake Bieber and about six others. The examination of witnesses consumed the entire afternoon, and wonderful was the contradiction in testimony. A number of witnesses testified that Mr. Bieber did strike Specter on the feast of Yum Kipper, at the Hebrew synagogue on Eighth street, during the early morning services; and about ten testified that he did not strike Specter. Constable Miles had his entire force of able and efficient deputies, and with their assistance he kept the peace and dignity of the court. The testimony in the M. Bieber case was finally completed after the sun had gone down and darkness had enveloped the court. The Judge took the case under advisement until all the defendants will be tried. Jake Bieber was on trial to-day.

Louis Spelbrink Injured.

Louis Spelbrink, a member of the House of Delegates, met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon. While driving out Easton avenue in front of a funeral his horses suddenly became excited and dashed wildly ahead. Mr. Spelbrink was thrown out violently and badly cut about the head, besides sustaining an injury to his hip.

MR. JOHN M. WHITE is connected with the advertising department of the POST-DISPATCH with the special object of writing up the business interests of St. Louis and vicinity.

Struck With a Beer Glass.

Charles Agnew of 2811 Ohio avenue walked into Deck's saloon at Sixth and Pine streets last evening. While drinking his beer an old enemy named Gus Wilharts stepped up and struck him with a beer glass. Wilhartz escaped after the assault, but was captured a few hours later by Officer Boyd.

IN CONVENTION.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew Meets in Entertainment Hall.

BISHOP TUTTLE ADDRESSES THE ORDER AT CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL.

Six Hundred Delegates in Attendance at the Opening Ceremonies—To-Night's Programme at the Exposition—Fall Meeting of the St. Louis Congregational Association—Religious News.

Christ Church Cathedral was filled this morning with over 500 delegates to the convention of St. Andrew's Brotherhood, who assembled there to begin their work with religious services. The service was conducted according to the impressive ritual of the English Church. The services opened with a processional hymn, followed by the recitation of the commandments and the Nicene creed. The Rt. Rev. D. S. Tuttle, D. D., Bishop of Missouri, delivered the charge to the Brotherhood. He warmly welcomed the Brotherhood to the city and thanked them for the honor of having chosen this city as the scene of their conference. He then delivered a masterly and stirring address, his whole discourse being cast in the manner of an address to a military body. His examplars were taken from among military heroes; his metaphors were warlike, and his charge to the Brotherhood was to develop the virtues of steadfastness, helpfulness and holiness, each of which was dwelt upon at length and beautifully developed. He exhorted them to follow Wolsey's invocation and let every aim be "their country's, God's and truth's." He descried the lives of those young men who like Hamlet, noble and honorable, yet were filled with despair and distrust, exclaiming, "The times are out of joint. O, cursed plight that even I was born to set them right." He exhorted the young men not to regret having a duty before them, but if he found them out of joint to go to work bravely and set them right. At the close of the Bishop's sermon the surpliced choir chanted a hymn. After the offertory the Bishop offered a prayer for Christ Church militant after which the congregation recited the confession. The prayers of humble access and consecration were then said, and after the oblation and consecration all approached the sacrament of the Lord's supper. The Bishop pronounced the benediction, and the congregation dispersed.

OPENING OF THE CONVENTION.

Immediately after divine services the delegates gathered together in Entertainment Hall. They are as fine a body of men as ever convened together in this city, quite a number of the clergy being among them. The delegates were seated according to the States they represented. Illinois, New York and Missouri having the largest showing. There were seventy-five delegates from New York and New England, and over one hundred from Chicago.

The delegates were seated and the convention called to order by Wm Ackman, Jr., of St. Paul's Chapel, Detroit. Coronation hymn, "All Hail the Power," was sung with great effect. Rev. R. C. Moran offered prayer. The convention was then treated to a grand surprise. Mr. Gywilin Miles, the celebrated baritone, stood up in the left hand box and, accompanied on the organ by Mr. Chas. H. Galloway, sang Faure's inspiring religious "The Psalms." As the strains poured through the hall the curtain at the back of the stage slowly ascending revealed Philippoteaux's masterpiece, "Christ Entering Jerusalem." The significance of Christ's entry was brought forcibly to the delegates through the instrumentality of music and painting. Mr. Jas. H. Waterworth was announced as temporary chairman. He made a strong and pleasant speech of welcome.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

Mr. William M. Sturgis of Chicago was made temporary secretary. The chairman then appointed the following Committee on Credentials: W. O. Garrison, St. Louis; Edmund Billings, Boston; Carleton Montgomery, New York; W. R. Pratt, Pittsburg; C. S. Martin, Nashville. The Committee on Permanent Officers were appointed as follows: John E. Baird, Philadelphia, Chairman; Frank Holmes, New York; Chas. E. Royer, San Francisco; Jas. Brewster, Detroit; Sneed Moore, Chicago.

A letter from the Y. M. C. A. was read extending the privileges of the Club-house to the visiting delegates. The invitation was heartily accepted and a greeting extended. The Chairman appointed as a Committee on Functions of the Local Organization: G. Davis, Germantown; C. P. Johns, Brooklyn; T. P. Osborn, Hyde Park; W. S. Crocker, Utica; Chas. Royer, San Francisco.

The convention adjourned at this point for lunch, to reconvene at 2 o'clock, when council reports were read, after which the meeting again adjourned until 4 o'clock.

A GENERAL CONFERENCE.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon there will be a general conference. William Aikman, Jr., of Detroit, Mich., will speak on "Churchgoing Among Young Men;" Earl C. Smith of St. James Church, Chicago, on "Why Men Do Not Go to Church." General Secretary John W. Wood on "What Will Bring Men to Church?" G. Harry Davis, Germantown, Pa., on "Public Worship and Christian Effort." The papers will then be open for discussion.

To-night at 8 o'clock there will be a special service for men at Entertainment Hall, conducted by Rt. Rev. E. R. Atwell, D. D., Bishop of West Missouri, who will speak on the "Dignity and Duty of Man." Chas. Jas. Wills of Old Epiphany House, New York, will speak on "Laborers Together With God;" Rev. Geo. J. Presscott of Good Shepherd, Boston, on "Through the Power of the Holy Ghost;" Rt. Rev. H. Melville Jackson, D. D., Assistant Bishop of Alabama, on "All Things Are Yours and Ye Are Christ's."

ORIGIN OF THE BROTHERHOOD.

HISTORY OF THE ORGANIZATION NOW IN CONVENTION.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood, which is to-day the strongest and most powerful body in the Episcopal Church, is not by any means an old organization. It originated a little over six years ago in the congregation of St. James' Church, Chicago, one of the largest and wealthiest in the country. Mr. James L. Houghtaling, who had charge of a Bible class, conceived the idea of the St. Andrews' Brotherhood and organized his class into the first chapter. Shortly after the general conference of the Episcopal Church was held and an invocation was inserted into the litany that "laborers might be sent into the harvest." The import of the prayer was to move the hearts of more young men to enter the ministry, but as a prominent clergyman said this morning, God's grace worked otherwise, and strange to say immediately the Brotherhood of St. Andrew began to spread with wonderful rapidity. From the little chapter in Chicago the idea spread to New York, Boston and all over the country. This is but the sixth annual session and yet the order numbers 8,000, and is represented at the present convention by nearly 600 delegates.

The order has but two rules, prayer and service. The first requires that each member shall daily pray for the spread of Christ's kingdom among young men. The other exacts that each member shall pledge himself to bring some one young man weekly in to hear Christ's gospel.

NOTES.

One of the most enjoyable parties who came down to the convention to-day arrived this morning over the Wabash. The New York and Boston delegations stopped off at Toledo and were received by the Toledo chapter of Trinity Church. Later the Cleveland, Detroit, Ann Harbor and Canada contingent arrived. They were tendered a reception by the ladies of the church, and afterwards they all came down to St. Louis together, occupying a special train. The reunion and reception was arranged by Rev. Charles Scadding, rector of Trinity Church, Toledo.

The convention is moving forward with great smoothness, and great credit is due to the committees having the arrangements in charge. They are as follows: Finance—Walker Hill and W. O. Garrison. Hospitality—C. W. Bittman, G. P. Andrews, J. C. Barrows, L. L. Whittemore, George R. Robinson. Committee of Arrangements—Charles A. Robinson, Rev. Carroll M. Davis, Henry Smith, J. W. Whitehead, Wyatt Shallcross. Transportation—R. B. Houghton, T. A. Bucklin, W. O. Garrison.

St. Louis Congregationalists' Meeting.

The St. Louis Congregational Association opened its fall meeting at Union Church, 1433 North Tenth street this morning at 9:30 o'clock. Union Church was built by the City Missionary Society, and is a very well arranged and commodious building.

The registrar of the association, Mr. O. L. Whitelaw, called the meeting to order. The pastors of all the churches were ex-officio delegates, and from their congregations were elected lay delegates, varying from two to four, according to the size of the congregation. The ministers present were: Rev. J. H. George, First Church; Rev. H. A. Stimson, D. D., Pilgrim; Rev. Geo. H. Grannis, Third; Rev. Geo. C. Adams, D.D., Compton Hill Church; Rev. D. W. Bartlett, Union Church; Rev. George Horst, German Church; Rev. Allan Hastings, Plymouth; Rev. E. E. Willey, Redeemer; Rev. E. Arnguist, Swedish; Rev. C. A. Wright, Olive Branch; Rev. J. D. Mitting, Tabernacle; Rev. J. P. O'Brien, Hope and Emanuel; Rev. F. W. Burrows, Old Orchard Church; Rev. J. W. Southerland of Webster Groves; Rev. E. E. Braithwaite, Aubert place; Rev. J. B. Clayton, Afton and Sappington, Mo.; Rev. A. H. Rogers, St. Clair, Mo.; Rev. R. M. Higgins, Central Church, Little Rock, Ark.

Rev. C. A. Wright led the introductory devotional exercises. The meeting then elected Col. J. F. K. Hayward Moderator and Rev. Allen Hastings Scribe. Rev. D. W. Bartlett of Union Church, Rev. F. B. Doe, Superintendent of the St. Louis Home Missionary Society for the Southwest, and S. B. Kellogg, Esq., were made a business committee, who recommended the programme previously outlined for the meeting.

Rev. J. W. Sutherland of Webster Groves, then delivered an address on "The Church and Public Morals," in which he made a pointed reference to education, and dwelt upon the fact that the directors of the schools should be the most representative men of the community. Rev. Allan Hastings made a five minute address and told the Assembly of a saloon which had threatened to invade the immediate region of Plymouth Church and to pollute the very surroundings of the Elleardville school. This evil, he said, the active work of the congregation removed.

Rev. F. W. Burrows continued the discussion and urged the necessity of church action.

Rev. Dr. Stimson then gave an interesting account of Congregationalism in England. He gave a resume of his visit to England as a delegate to the International Congregational Council, held in London in July. Dr. Stimson visited Scrooley, in the North of England, the birthplace of Puritanism and the home of William Brewster. He gave a very instructive sketch of those exciting times and showed a photograph of the very house in which Brewster labored and performed the duties of postmaster and which is now the home of a sturdy farmer, who is also the postmaster of the place. He then spoke of the present condition of Congregationalism in England. "It is remarkable," he said, "for the individuality and activity of the lay members." He enlarged upon this and closed with a tribute to the industry they display in all social, political and moral duties. Several delegates asked him to continue and give details of these duties, and he then gave an account of their work as street missionaries, sanitary officers and benefactors of the poor.

The Registrar read requests from George T. Rickers for a transfer to the Colorado Association, and from J. M. P. Metcalf for a transfer to the Medina, (O.) Association. They were granted and the convention adjourned to the basement where the delegates partook of a very fine repast prepared by the ladies of the association.

The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock, with devotional exercises, led by Rev. J. P. O'Brien. The programme for the afternoon embraced reports from the churches and business of the association. Rev. G. H. Grannis opened a discussion on "The Musical Service in Our Smaller Churches." Rev. Allan Hastings took up "Methods in Bible Study." The afternoon session closed with a discussion on "Sabbath School Work," begun by Rev. H. C. Cronin of Kansas City, State Superintendent of Sunday-schools.

The programme for the evening session is as follows: At 7:45, devotional exercises, led by Rev. J. H. George, D. D.; 8:00, address on "Sabbath Decoration," Rev. A. L. Love; 8:30, address on "Christianity and the Bread Winners," Rev. George C. Adams, D. D.

WOMEN'S WORLD'S FAIR WORK.

A Splendid Meeting of the Missouri Board of Lady Managers.

The Board of Lady Managers of the Missouri State World's Fair Commission met yesterday at the Lindell Hotel about 200 ladies of this city and vicinity and formed a permanent organization for representation of women's work at the Columbia Exposition. Mrs. J. B. Legg was elected Chairwoman, and Mrs. Starkwether Secretary. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. J. N. Edwards of the board, followed by Mrs. Blennerhassett-Adams in a paper giving a brief review of the intentions of the World's Fair, touching on what was being done on the other side of the water in preparing exhibits, and taking the different States of the Union on "Woman's Work," what they were doing, and going to do, closing by asking what Missouri intended doing in the Woman's Department, and paying a tribute to the women of the State and St. Louis. She said: "We will organize and appoint our committee throughout the State of Missouri, if allowed, and show that woman's work shall continue to be what her mission in this life clearly is, first and best always."

Mrs. S. P. Sparks followed, urging the ladies to give their assistance in forwarding the interest of the State at the World's Fair. She also spoke of the National Government utilizing the women of the nation and Missouri in following her example showed her usual sagacity for the two, both man and woman, were needed to make this enterprise a success. Executive Committeeman Gwynne and Maj. J. B. Merwin followed with encouragement for "woman's work," Mrs. Lake in behalf of the working girls. Committees were then formed, a full list of which will be published.

The Board of Managers want all women who are desirous of serving on various committees to send in their names to Mrs. Blennerhassett-Adams, office 1120 Pine street.

The success of the splendid meeting was due to the untiring energy and wise methods Mrs. Blennerhassett-Adams has inaugurated to interest all the various organizations for "woman's work" in this great movement of the Columbian Exposition.

Criticism of Supt. Schaffer.

Building Commissioner Thos. J. Furlong says that the children in the House of Refuge could be well protected from the cold if Supt. John D. Shaffer would manage things a little better, "We will get steam into the new building from the boiler we are now putting up in a few days," said the Commissioner. "In the meantime the superintendent could, if he would, turn the steam form the boiler he has into the children's quarters morning and evening and give it to the shoe shop of the contractor only between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. instead of all the time. If it gets very cold while we are working on the new boiler the steam can be turned off entirely from the shop and turned into the dwelling and there will be no suffering. Of course the contractors will lose a few dollars, but that is better than letting the children freeze."

A SENSATION EXPLODED.

Garza, the Mexican Invader, Not in a Missouri Bastile.

MARYVILLE, Mo., Oct. 22.—The report sent out by the correspondent of a St. Louis paper from St. Joseph, this State, last night that the Mexican revolutionary leader, Catarino Garza, was in jail at Maryville, is a pure fabrication. The only occupant of the jail that is not well known is a young man, giving the name of Forbes, who was captured the 27th of July while attempting to rob the Post-office during the procession of Barnum's circus here.

The shrewd St. Joseph newspaper men and detectives who are looking for the $30,000 reward offered by President Diaz for the arrest of Garza, dead or alive, will gain nothing by visiting this city.

Ammonia and Alum in Baking Powders—How to Detect Them.

In view of what the Minnesota Senate has done, it is hoped that legislative bodies in other States will soon take up the subject of food adulteration. The subjoined list of baking powders containing ammonia and alum, compiled from official reports and published in a recent number of the Scientific American, is given below. Ammonia and alum are the most common adulterants used in the manufacture of baking powders. The Government report shows that a large percentage of the baking powders on the market contain either one or the other, or both these pernicious drugs.

What woman would use an ammonia or alum baking powder if she knew it? Such powders not only undermine the health, but ammonia gives to the complexion a sallow or blotched appearance. The presence of ammonia or alum in a baking powder, however, can easily be detected.

To Detect Ammonia.—Mix one heaping teaspoonful of baking powder with one teaspoonful of water in a tin cup: boil thoroughly for a few moments, stir to prevent burning, and if ammonia is present you can smell it in the rising steam. Or, place a can of the suspected powder top down on a hot stove for a minute or two, then take off the cover and smell.

To Detect Alum.—Alum powder can be tested by putting a couple of teaspoonfuls of the powder in a glass of cold water. If no effervescence, that is bubbling or simmering, takes place, condemn the powder and return it at once.

Some alum powders, however, like the "Calumet," "Bon Bon," "Chicago Yeast," etc., contain phosphates in combination with alum, and with these brands the following test is simple and sure:

Take one-half teaspoonful of baking powder in lid of say half-pound can; char thoroughly over a strong alcohol flame, a good gas jet, or red hot coals. After charring (that is, burning until the whole mass is black) add a teaspoonful of water and place a bright piece of silver coin in the solution. Stir for one minute, then take out the silver. If the powder prove a cream of tartar powder the coin will be bright; if an alum powder it will have sulphur stains.

Now pour a little vinegar into the lid and smell the fumes. Alum powders give off sulphuretted hydrogen, which may be detected by its foul odor.

IG. DONNELLY'S LIBEL SUIT.

The Minneapolis District Court Crowded With Interested Spectators.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 22.—The "Standing room only" sign was hung out early yesterday at the District Court, and not one-tenth of the people who wanted to hear the testimony in the Donnelly libel suit against the St. Paul Pioneer Press for $100,000 could even get into the court-yard. The newspaper took an inning. Its attorney not only claimed that all the charges of bribery in Col. King's letter were literally true, but made a dozen other specific charges involving Mr. Donnelly, the Central Pacific Railroad and many prominent men. Col. W. S. King, ex-Congressman from the Third District, was on the stand all day and his testimony was generally corroborative of the charges of the Pioneer Press. Col. King testified positively as to seeing checks or drafts for $2,500 and $3,000 from C. P. Huntington of the Central Pacific Railroad for Mr. Donnelly.

A Novel World's Fair Scheme.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 22.—Prominent business men of this city, Augusta, Bangor and Lewiston have organized a corporation known as the New England Transportation Co., the object of which is to provide transportation to Chicago during the fair, which shall include sleeping car service, board in Chicago and accident insurance. The plan is a very novel one and consists in the issue of certificates payable in installments, which, when fully paid, are to be exchanged for tickets to Chicago.

Kentucky Bankers' Association.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 22.—A Kentucky Bankers' Association was organized here yesterday with Thomas L. Barrett of Louisville for President, and about two hundred bankers from all parts of the State were present.

WAS IT MISTAKEN IDENTITY?

Curious Complications Brought About by Investigation of an Alleged Elopement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—W. R. Carter of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Metropolis arrived in this city yesterday on the steamship Algonquin. When Samuel N. Thornton and Eva Jewell of Brooklyn arrived in Jacksonville and told the thrilling yarn of their big fright and subsequent rescue and landing upon Florida shores, Mr. Carter was sent to interview them. Mr. Carter announced that Sam and Eva were romancing, and brought proof to show that he traveled with them in a railroad car from Pensacola to Milton, a little way station between Pensacola and Jacksonville. Sam and Eva vigorously denied Mr. Carter's story. They said it was a case of mistaken identity. When they arrived at their Brooklyn home the deacons of Mount Olivet Church, to which they belong, sent an emissary to Jacksonville to investigate Mr. Carter's story. It resulted in the vindication of Sam and Eva. Mr. Carter now comes to prove to Sam and Eva's fellow church members that his story is true.

"When I called at the St. John's Hotel," said Mr. Carter yesterday, "and sent up my card, Thornton was not in. Eva stepped out into the parlor to see me. The moment I saw her I recognized her. In fact, the recognition was mutual. She uttered an exclammation, became ashy white, and with a gasp fell into a chair. For a moment she could not speak. She simply held her hands over her face. 'This is a remarkable story you and Mr. Thornton tell,' I said. 'You are the same woman that came with me from Pensacola to Milton.' Eva became indignant and refused to say a word. She left me hurriedly. I then looked up Thornton and identified him at once. His manner indicated that he, too, recognized me.

"After the couple arrived home a gentleman from their church came down to investigate their story. We gave him all the information we had. I told him how impossible was their story. I obtained for him a sworn affidavit from the car conductor, who also identified Sam and Eva as the same who had traveled in his car, and he left convinced, as we thought, that Sam and Eva were lying. To my surprise when he returned he cast doubt upon my story and had the church vindicate the man and woman. This placed me in an embarrassing position. I was urged to come here to expose the whitewashed vindication, and I propose to do so."

Mr. Carter will communicate to-day with the authorities of Sam and Eva's church.

TO MARRY A RUSSIAN COUNTESS.

Why Capt. Yorke Was Divorced From His American Wife.

SEAGIRT, N. J., Oct. 22.—The report that a divorce has been granted by the Dakota courts to Capt. Lewis A. Yorke, ex-paymaster in the navy, from his wife, Emma, has created surprise here, where Mrs. Yorke has a summer cottage. She was not aware, it is said, that her husband was seeking a divorce. The charges against her, she declares, are false. She has engaged counsel to begin proceedings against the ex-paymaster to have his divorce declared fraudulent. Soon after obtaining his Dakota divorce Capt. Yorke married Countess Evelyn de Sychlinski, who claimed to be the widow of a Russian nobleman.

Buffalo Bought by an Englishman.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—America has lost ten of the few remaining old-time prairie buffalo. They were bought at a fabulous price by Mr. Leland, the millionaire banker of Liverpool, England, and passed through Chicago last night en route to New York, whence they sail next Tuesday. The rare animals are to be placed in Mr. Leland's private park, near Liverpool. They are accompanied by "Buffalo" Jones.

"When Mr. Leland cabled to ask what I would take for ten of the buffalo," said Mr. Jones, "I answered by naming a price which I thought he would not dream of paying, for I was not particularly anxious to sell. But he wanted buffalo in his park, and that was all there was about it; money was no object. There will never be another captured. I doubt if 500 still exist uncaptured, and these keep in parts of the mountains where no living man could reach them."

Mistaken for a Squirrel.

HOLLIS, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Samuel Cadmus, residing near here, wears a squirrel skin cap. Yesterday morning he started out to gather chestnuts. Charles Kinkel and Harry Austin, two Long Island City youths, were ranging the woods near here in search of squirrels. Cadmus had climbed a tree to get the nuts. The boys saw the tip of the fur cap among the leaves. They believed it to be a squirrel and blazed away. The hat came down and so did Cadmus. Several shots had grazed the man's head. He refused to accept the apologies of the frightened boys and seizing a stick proceeded to beat them. The farmer's head was dressed at a doctor's in Jamaica.

HAD A BIG PARADE.

The Farmers' Alliance of Kansas as Enthusiastic as Ever.

A LOCAL AND GENERAL CO-OPERATIVE SYSTEM WARMLY URGED.

President McGrath's Annual Address—The National Woman's Alliance—Debate Between Peffer and Burton—All a Fake—The Arkansas Prohibitionists—Political.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.—A special to the Star from Salina, Kan., says: "This is a big day for the Farmers' Alliance in Kansas. By numbers and demonstration it appears that the Alliance in Kansas is as enthusiastic as it was last fall, and that the farmers hold the key to the business and political situation of the State. The city of Salina has been beseiged with members of the order, and at 10 o'clock this morning not less than 10,000 of them had gathered about the city. Every road leading to the city was filled with wagons, buggies and horsemen. At that hour the procession was formed and it moved through the main street of the city to the Fair Grounds. While this demonstration was in progress President McGrath was delivering his annual address. It was in accord with his often repeated declarations that the Alliance must preserve a business organization intact; that to enter politics as an organization is to impair its usefulness. He urged the speedy adoption of both a local and general co-operative system. He hoped that all jealousies and political differences would be laid aside and united support be given to those in charge of the business affairs of the body. He stated that during the past year 249 sub-Alliances had been formed. The Committee on Credentials reported and asked if delegates from counties behind with their dues should be seated. It was, after a long discussion, decided to seat them. The Council then adjourned to take part in the parade, which was then passing through the streets. President McGrath, National Lecturer John Willits and Mrs. Vickery, Vice-President, headed the Council in the procession. At the Fair Grounds an immense dinner was waiting the participants in the parade. The chief attraction this afternoon was a speech by Congressman Jerry Simpson. The council will be in session again this evening, but will hold no night session on account of the joint debate between Senator Pfeffer and J. Ralph Burton, Republican. The audience will be equally divided between the Alliance and Republicans. An amusing feature of the convention is the endeavor of the National Woman's Alliance for recognition. Inasmuch as women are entitled to membership in the Alliance lodges with the same privileges as men, the delegates cannot understand why a separate organization should have been formed.

ALL A FAKE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The report current last night that the President had tendered the war portfolio to S. B. Elkins is emphatically denied by that gentleman. Mr. Elkins is stopping at the Plaza Hotel, where he was found last evening. "I have seen the published account of my Cabinet appointment," he said, "and it has immensely surprised me. As a matter of fact, there is nothing in the story. I have not been appointed, neither do I want to be, Secretary of War."

"But have you received any intimation that the office will be tendered you?"

"Now, that's a delicate question," was the reply, "and I must decline to answer. I will say, however, that the President has said nothing to me on the subject."

Thomas C. Platt later in the evening assured a reporter that he had heard nothing whatever of the President's reported intention of crowning Mr. Elkins with Cabinet honors. "You may rest assured," said Mr. Platt, "that the report is a—what do you call it?—a—'fake.'"

CHICAGO'S FEMALE VOTERS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 22.—About ten thousand women tried to get registered Tuesday for the school election, but only 700 succeeded. Those whose names were rejected appeared before the Election Commission yesterday and demanded that their names be placed on the registration list. If their demand is refused they will take the matter into court. On the other hand the registrars who rejected women are to be cited to appear before court for violating the Court's instructions.

PEFFER AND BURTON.

CONCORDIA, Kan., Oct. 22.—Senator Peffer and J. R. Burton had a joint debate here yesterday on the money question, Peffer speaking first and being followed by the representative of the Republican party. The crowd was about equally divided between Alliance men and Republicans.

ARKANSAS PROHIBITION ALLIANCE.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 22.—The State Prohibition Alliance devoted yesterday's session to hearing county reports. A public meeting was held last night, which was addressed by Geo. C. Christain of Eureka Springs and Prof. J. H. Sledd of Arkadelphia.

Jacksonville—Y. M. C. A. Building.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Oct. 22.—The members of the Y. M. C. A. of this city propose to raise the $6,000 needed to finish the building for the gymnasium, the foundation of which is already laid, this winter. As the society is composed of wide-awake, enthusiastic young men they will doubtless raise the money.

George Sibley, a carpenter, fell some eighteen feet yesterday while working on a new house by the giving away of the scaffolding on which he was standing. He was taken home unconscious, but recovered, and will probably soon be about again.

The trustees of the Central Hospital for the Insane are putting down about 12,000 square feet of concrete walk through the grounds of the institution, which will add much to the beauty of the grounds.

Prof. James M. Pattison announces that in answer to inquiries, word has come from W. Hamilton Gibson and Childe Rassam that the Society of Art of this city will be allowed to exhibit their pictures which have been on view in St. Louis until now. Mr. T. Dean Cooper, also of St. Louis, has agreed to loan many celebrated pictures from his costly collection.

Chester—Fell From His Horse.

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 22.—Charles Herschback buried his 3-year-old girl yesterday, who died from the effect of falling backwards into a bucket of scalding water two weeks ago. The child was cooked in a horrible manner and suffered the keenest agonies.

There were two more deaths from diphtheria at Steeleville this week. The schools are closed.

The ladies of St. Ann's Guild have raised and spent over $300 in repairing and painting St. Mark's Episcopal Church. It now looks quite handsome.

While Albert Novock was out riding yesterday his horse became frightened and threw the young man off and trampled upon him, tearing a large gash in his abdomen, making a very dangerous wound. Dr. J. T. Pollock attended to his injuries.

Galena—Probably Murdered.

GALENA, Ill., Oct. 22.—Ten days ago Charles Hammond of this county was found dying in Jackson, Tenn. It was supposed that he had committed suicide and the Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, his revolver in his hand and a slight bullet wound in his left side being the proof. A second examination of the head disclosed that the back of the head had been crushed by a blow, and other indications point to the belief that his death was the work of an assassin and his own weapon was accidentally discharged into his body in his efforts at self-defense. His friends, who have gone to Jackson, will try every means possible to find the guilty party. Mr. Hammond was a veteran of Company F, Illinois Volunteers, and his comrades are numerous.

BELT ROAD TROUBLE

A Committee of Workmen Confer With President Scullin.

CHIEFS ARTHUR AND SARGENT ARRIVE HERE THIS MORNING.

Meeting Held This Morning by Them With the Discontented Engineers and Fire-Men—What the Men Demanded of the Road—The Railroad Officials Consider the Matter in Executive Session.

P. M. Arthur of Cleveland, O., Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and F. P. Sargent of Terre Haute, Ind., Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, arrived in the city this morning, the former registering at the Laclede and the latter at Hurst's Hotel. They came here to endeavor to adjust the differences between the Belt Line in East St. Louis and the engineers and firemen employed by the road. The engineers and firemen want $3.75 and $2.15 a day respectively, and want ten hours considered a day's work, and extra pay for all work over that time. This is the scale of wages paid the firemen and engineers by the Bridge Co., it is claimed, and the employes of the Belt road demand that they shall be allowed the same pay. The engineers of the Belt road now receive, it is said, $3.25 a day and the firemen $1.75 a day.

When Mr. Arthur and Mr. Sargent, arrived at their hotels this morning they found committees waiting for them. After talks with the committees the two men went to Mr. Sargent's room at Hurst's Hotel where they remained closeted for some time with the committee of engineers and firemen appointed to consult with them. The chiefs heard the grievances of the men and advised with them about the best way to adjust matters. There has been no strike as yet on the road. A committee representing the men called on Supt. Sharman some days ago and made known their demands, but the men have all kept at work pending the decision of the road in reference to their request.

A MEETING THIS AFTERNOON.

A meeting was appointed for 2 o'clock this afternoon, when a committee of four representing the firemen and engineer will call on President John Scullin. Both the workmen and officers of the road hope for an amicable adjustment of the wage question at this meeting.

While the firemen and engineers were consulting with their chiefs this morning the officers of the road were holding a conference behind closed doors in the office of President John Scullin. What conclusion they arrived at would not be divulged at the office. One of the officers of the company said in reference to the trouble:

"The first we knew that the men were not satisfied is when we read the fact in the newspapers. What grievances the men have we do not know as they have never told us them. They are better paid now than the men in any of the switch yards. There has been no strike and I do not think there will be. It is probable that everything will be amicalby arranged."

Both Chief Arthur and Chief Sargent were rather reticent about the affair. "We came here to investigate the grievances of the men," remarked Mr. Arthur, "but have not called on any of the railroad people and may not do so. A committee of firemen and engineers is to confer with the president of the road this afternoon, and everything may be settled at this conference. If so there will be no occasion for Mr. Sargent or myself to call on the railroad people. We would only step in if it should be found impossible for the men themselves to arrive at an understanding with the officials of the road. Our conferences to-day so far have been entirely with the men themselves. They ask the same pay as is given the firemen and engineers of the Bridge Co. and ask that ten hours constitute a day's work. If the trouble is adjusted at the meeting this afternoon Mr. Sargent and I will return home to-night. Until that conference is over I can say nothing further."

Chief Sargent who was with Mr. Arthur spoke in the same strain, and both expressed a wish that the meeting this afternoon would result in settling the trouble as they expected it would.

ALTON NOTES.

The Drumgool-McLaughlin Wedding—Reception to Rev. G. W. Smith.

ALTON, Ill., Oct. 22.—Mr. John Drumgool and Miss Maggie McLaughlin were united in marriage yesterday morning at 6 o'clock by Rev. Father Fallon of St. Patrick's Church. After the marriage ceremony at the church the happy couple and their friends sat down to an elegant wedding breakfast at the residence of the bride, 813 East Second street. At 9:30 they left on the Chicago & Alton Railroad for St. Louis.

A hunting party, composed of Michael Walsh, Chief of Police at East St. Louis, Ex-Deputy Sheriff G. F. Crowe of Alton, and others, left over the Bluff Line yesterday for Gilbert Lake, in Calhoun County on a hunting expedition. They will be away for over a week.

Capt. Geo. Allen of the steamer Eddy was called to his home at Spring Valley to-day by a dispatch announcing the serious illness of his mother.

An elegant reception was given Rev. G. W. Smith, the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. J. A. Cousley, Sixth and Abby streets. Rev. Mr. Smith and family had been invited to spend the evening with Mr. Cousley and was surprised when the members of his flock began to come in large numbers, as he had received no intimation of the reception. Late in the evening refreshments were served and the occasion was one long to be remembered.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Otto F. Amerhein and Miss Annie M. Pepmiller, both of Alton.

Capt. James E. Starr has decided to remove to Portland, Ore., where he has a number of relatives. The Captain has been a resident of Alton for many years.

Drs. G. A. McMillen and C. B. Rohland are in attendance upon the annual meeting of the Southern Illinois Dental Association in session at East St. Louis.

Deputy County Clerk Brandewelde yesterday issued a marriage license to Clarence T. Wilson, a popular glassblower, and Miss Lillian Yeomans of Binghampton, N. Y.

Lawrence Hunt was yesterday called to Corning, N. Y., by the serious illness of his father.

Messrs. C. Loer and O. F. Wuerker, engineer on the steamer Hickman, are here visiting relatives and friends.

The fair being given by St. Mary's Church is drawing quite a crowd each evening, and present indications are that quite a large sum for that church will be realized.

Hon. J. H. Raible, wife and daughter left yesterday on a visit to Jacksonville.

Richard Breckinridge of Chicago is visiting friends and relatives here.

Mrs. H. Godown of Independence, Kan., is visiting her niece, Mrs. Thos. Rowan on Henry street.

The street paving on the east end of Third street is being pushed to completion, and unless delayed by the plumbers putting gas and water into the business houses, the contractors think it will be open to travel by Saturday next.

SPRINGFIELD NOTES.

Platform Adopted at the F. M. B. A. Convention.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 22.—The following platform was adopted yesterday by the F. M. B. A., after which the convention adjourned:

We favor equal assessments and taxation upon all forms of property, real, personal and corporate.

We favor a graduated income tax, so that the greater the income of a citizen or a corporation the more tax they shall pay, and by this we do not mean the confiscation of the property of the wealthy, but ask that the burden of government be equalized.

The increase of the circulating medium of a country increases the value of the products of that country. We, therefore, consider that the surreptitious demonetization of silver in 1873 was a fraud upon the people. We demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and that the circulating medium of the country shall be issued by the Government direct to the people, in sufficient volume to do the business of the country on a cash basis, and making all money so issued legal tender for the payment of all debts, both public and private.

We demand that all stocks and bonds of corporations shall be issued on such a basis that where they call for $1 they shall represent 100 cents of legitimate outlay; that all watered stock shall be retired, and that the stock and bonds of corporations shall represent the actual cost and indebtedness of the same.

We are opposed to fostering certain industries by Government bounty. We consider sugar no more entitled to a bounty than corn, ships no more than the breeding of cattle. We are opposed to all monopolies, and want it distinctly understood that the organized liquor traffic is included. We oppose the unholy alliance of the Government with said business. As a remedy, we propose that all revenue and license laws, high or low, must be repealed, both State and national. We favor the election of men of our calling to represent us in the halls of legislation.

Resolved, That the State Assembly, through the national organ, furnish questions for discussion in subordinate lodges.

We favor co-operation and confederation with all farmer and labor organizations.

We believe the Government should prohibit dealing in futures of any and all agricultural and mechanical products.

We believe Congress should enact such laws as will effectually prevent the sale of adulterated food products.

We are opposed to alien ownership of lands.

We demand the uniformity of text books for our common schools and that the State furnish them at actual cost.

The more power retained by the people, within constitutional limits, the greater we consider will be the safety of the people's rights. We are, therefore, in favor of the election of United States Senators, Presidents, Vice-Presidents and Postmasters (through the patrons of the office) by a direct vote of the people. To accomplish this and prevent class legislation in the future, we favor amendments to the Constitution of the United States. We also demand that United States Judges be elected by a direct vote of the people.

We favor the extension of the free delivery mail service to the people outside of the towns and cities.

Whereas, There are millions of dollars annually sent to foreign countries for fibers from which binder twine, rope, bagging, etc., are made, thus producing a constant drain on our finances, especially affecting the producer; and

Whereas, It has been fully demonstrated that the best of the above goods can be made from American products; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we encourage the growth and manufacture of such goods from home-grown fiber, by not patronizing manufacturers that are using foreign fibers.

Resolved, That we demand that all property—real, personal, chattels, notes, mortgages and all other credits, be assessed at fair cash value; that the assessors shall be provided with a stamp, and all notes and credits shall be stamped as authorized, and if not stamped cannot be collected by law.

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves not to vote for any person or political party who will not pledge themselves in advance to work and vote to secure the passage of such law.

The Secretary of State issued the following licenses to incorporate:

The Lewis Valve Gear Co., East St. Louis; capital stock $600.00; incorporators, Walace J. Lewis, Lawrence B. Fish and Edward S. Marshall.

Christian County Electric Railway Co., Taylorville; capital stock $100,000; incorporators, W. W. Anderson, F. P. Drennan, Chas. Cheney, F. W. Anderson and J. N. C. Shumway.

Gov. Fifer issued a requisition on the Governor of Missouri for the extradition of Calvin Whittington, who is wanted in Benton, Ill., on a charge of assault on the person of Martha Hartley on Aug. 9, 1891, with intent to commit rape. He is now under arrest in Ripley County, Mo. Chas. Doty is charged with the same offense.

The Adjutant-General has issued an order confirming the election of John J. Garrity as Second Lieutenant, Company H, Second Infantry. An election for Captain is ordered in Company A, Fourth Infantry, and for Second Lieutenant in Company D, Fifth Infantry.

Private H. W. Bollinger and August Carson of Company L, First Infantry, and Private Edwin D. Bishop, Company D, Fifth Infantry, are dishonorably discharged.

MINOR NOTES.

The State Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners will meet next Friday in this city.

The north passenger elevator at the State-house broke down yesterday, the cable giving out.

Peoria—Military Tract Society.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 22.—Judge H. W. Blodgett of the United States District Court will address the Scientific Association of this city next Friday evening on the subject of "The Early History of Mormonism."

The Transcript will in the morning advocate the nomination of Senator Mark M. Bassett for State Treasurer on the Republican ticket. Senator Bassett makes his home here and is very popular and will be indorsed by the Evening Journal and the German dailies. This is a Democratic county and when Mr. Bassett made his last run for Senator against one of the ablest lawyers in Peoria, he defeated him by 800, although the plurality is generally that much the other way. His friends are confident that he has more than a fighting chance for the nomination and believe that Peoria, by reason of its location and political importance deserves a place on the ticket.

Fifteen Peorians left the city on the C., B. & Q. fast train, which was wrecked at Monmouth, but all of them left the train at intermediate points or changed cars at Monmouth.

The convention of the Military Tract Medical Society closed to-day. About 100 members were in attendance, many of them accompanied by their wives. Dr. Robert Reed of Peoria delivered the address of welcome which was responded to by Dr. Thomas Temple of Cameron, Ill. The following officers were elected:

President, Dr. J. F. Percy, Galesburg. First Vice-President, Dr. W. S. Halliday, Monmouth, Second Vice-President, Dr. W. S. McClanahan, Woodhull. Secretary and Treasurer, Dr. H. M. Harrison, Bushnell. Board of Censors, Drs. Charles Hall, Kewanee; Thomas Temple, Cameron; and J. H. Wallace, Monmouth. Publication Committee, Drs. Harrison, Bushnell; McIlvaine, Peoria, and Hall, Kewanee. Necrologist, Dr. O. B. Will, Peoria.

Yesterday evening a reception was tendered the visiting members in the parlors of the National Hotel. To-day was devoted to business of the society and the reading of many interesting papers.

About one year ago quo warranto proceedings were begun in the Circuit Court before Judge Shaw against the Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York. This morning Judge Shaw decided the case, handing down a decision in favor of the foreign company on all points and sustaining the right of foreign companies with the lawful capital, deposit and reinsurance reserve to do an accident business in all its various branches in this State.

The police arrested a man yesterday morning supposed to be one of the prisoners who escaped from the St. Louis Jail. The police of St. Louis have been notified and a description of the man forwarded to them. In the meantime he will be held on a charge of vagrancy. He claims to be a printer.

The Stephens murder trial is in progress in the Circuit Court. The evidence is such that he will probably get off with a light sentence and may be acquitted.

Hiram Brown, one of the last representatives of the eighteenth century in this county, died at his home in Elmwood and will be buried to-day. He was within four days of his 94th milestone.

Allen S. Sweet, an old settler, died on his farm at Orange Prairie to-day, aged 79 years.

President Greenhut of the Distillers' & Cattle-Feeders' Co. was asked this evening regarding the reported meeting of the Kentucky distillers and trust officials with reference to downing cheap grade distilleries and pronounced the story without foundation. He characterized it as making a mountain out of a molehill. There are very emphatic rumors among interested people to the effect that a determined effort will be made to down the manufacturers of cheap, "quick-aging" whiskies.

Friday evening there will be a ten-round glove contest at the Lyceum between two colored pugilists. W. R. Sharp of St. Louis being one and William Taylor of New Orleans the other.

Trenton—Seeking Pure Water.

TRENTON, Ill., Oct. 22.—The first number of the Presbyterian, to be issued semi-monthly and published in this city, made its appearance this week. It is a five column quarto, edited by Mrs. J. Garrigus, with Rev. L. Johnson business manager. Enough funds have been raised to insure its publication one year.

The Board of Education of this city has appropriated sufficient funds to bore to the sandstone strata of rock for an abundant supply of pure water. The depth to be penetrated is 200 feet and the cost will be $300.

Mr. Adams Emig, Jr., who has for some time since been engaged in business in Socorro, N. M., has returned to our city and will engage in business here.

Danville—Freight Crew Tried.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 22.—Yesterday the trial of the crew of the freight train charged with the responsibility for the Crete wreck was concluded. Supt. M. S. Conners and Trainmaster M. F. Burke of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois acted as a court. The trial resulted in the discharge of Oliver A. Smith, the conductor; J. Meehan, the rear brakeman, and Frank Shawles, the middle brakeman. The latter was not guilty of negligence at Crete, but he went to sleep at Watseka while on duty. William Cloyd, the head brakeman, will continue in the employ of the company. Oliver Smith is an old conductor. He has been employed in that capacity for six years.

SUED ON A NOTE.

Broker James Campbell Wants $20,862.75 From Lawyer M. F. Taylor.

MONEY LOANED ON MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC LIGHT STOCK AND REAL ESTATE

Mrs. May L. T. Taylor Also Included in the Suit on an Unpaid Note—The Ring Case on Trial—The South Side Day Nursery—Legal News.

A new trouble and complication connected with the recent failure of the consolidation scheme by which the Laclede Gas Light Co. was to absorb the Municipal Electric Light & Power Co. developed to-day in the filing of a sensational suit in the Circuit Court. At a late hour this afternoon Mr. James Campbell, the well-known Third street broker and financier, who was one of the leaders of the proposed Laclede municipal consolidation, filed suit against Mortimer F. Taylor, the corporation attorney, who has also been identified with the Municipal Electric Light & Power Co. from its earliest days, and who has an office in the Laclede Building, and his wife, May L. T. Taylor, the well-known society leader, for $20,862.75.

Campbell claims he executed a note in favor of Taylor and his wife for $20,000 on Jan. 4, 1890 payable three months after date. The Taylors gave as security 8,300 shares in the Municipal Electric & Power Co. and some real estate located in the city. The note was not paid on the aforesaid date, and in consequence Campbell sues for the principal and interest. The case is likely to have some interesting developments, and will be especially interesting to financial circles on Third street, owning to the prominence of both parties in recent electric light deals.

THE RING CASE.

The Ring $100,000 damage suit against the Armour-Cudahy Co. is still in progress in Judge Withrow's Court. On the resting of Mr. Ring's case Judge Withrow sustained a motion by Judge Laughlin for a non-suit as to the Guarantee Co. The case is being heard to-day against the Armour-Cudahy Packing Co. Mr. Forbs, an employe of the packing company, testified as to conversations with Mr. Ring about turning over Mr. Ring's books to the company. Most of the time during the morning session was taken up by attorneys arguing law points.

Shelbyville—The Little Case.

SHELBYVILLE, Ill., Oct. 12.—The case of Ivison M. Little, former Treasurer of Fayette County, occupied the attention of the Circuit Court here. It seems that when Little went out of office about a year ago he was found to be several thousand dollars short. His bondsmen have since made good $7,000, and he is now called upon to answer a charge of embezzling the $8,000 or for withholding funds from his successor. Messrs. Farmer, Brown and Turner and Cox and Wills of Vandalia, assisted by Judge Anthony Thornton, are counsel for the defense, and State's Attorney Townsend of Shelbyville with State's Attorney Albert and Judge Henry of Vandalia are attorneys for the people. Judge Craighton of Springfield is on the bench, and the case is attracting much interest.

At the meeting of the Redmen the following officers were installed: Sachem, Chas. H. Marshall; Senior Sagamore, Will H. Lloyd; Junior Sagamore, Ellsworth Cook; Chief of Records, J. Frank Renshaw; Keeper of Wampum, Al Reed; Collector of Wampum, Will Hart.

The following charter members were initiated: J. T. Herrick, J. C. Calvert, Will H. Chew, J. A. Babb, R. L. Garis, Grant Huntoon, Thos. Camfield, Jeff Davis, W. O. Kelley, C. C. Matthews, True Woodward, Ben Anglin, Bert Lantz, Madison Moore and N. C. Leathers. The names of the appointive officers will be announced at the next meeting.

ST. LOUIS GROCERY MARKET.

Reported by the Greeley-Burnham Grocery Co.

Established 1838.

With cooler weather and a growing demand for goods the volume of business continues to increase and is now as large as we have ever experienced at this season of the year. For canned goods especially the inquiry is urgent and large sales have been made at prices which are daily becoming firmer. The fact that stocks are light has become more patent and buyers, appreciating this, are placing orders very liberally.

There has been no change in the price of sugar for three weeks, until to-day, when ⅛c of a decline was announced. We quote 4⅝c for granulated.

The decline in coffee continues and we have reduced prices ½c on roasted and good grades of green and 1c ℘ ℔ on low grades. Desirable styles continue very scarce.

Syrup, rice and other staples are unchanged. Rope has advanced ½c per pound. Flour is weak and quotable at a reduction of 5c per bbl.

We are now offering new figs, currants, raisins, nuts, dried grapes at very attractive prices.

The new 10c cigar, which we have for some time been expecting to put on the market, is now on sale under the brand of "Powell Smith & Co.'s Conchas." We expect for it as great a success as the Smokette has achieved.

We are now located in our new store, Nos. 714 to 722 Spruce street, and will be glad to have all of our friends call on us when in the city.

We solicit the orders of merchants only, and can entertain no orders from consumers. Correspondence with country dealers invited.

Our 28-page complete price list of groceries, woodenware, wagons, buggies, sewing machines, etc., will be sent gratuitously to merchants only on application.

ON 'CHANGE.

Grain.

Wheat—An unsettled and quiet market during the early part of the session, selling up ⅜c, declining ⅛c and then a sharp flurry on war news (?) that carried the price up 1⅛c, from this falling 2⅛c, and closing with sellers 1c below yesterday at same time. The small advance just after the opening was caused by several strong influences that were strong enough to hold sellers off, but not strong enough to bring out much of a demand. Public cables quoted Liverpool unchanged and cargoes of Pacific coast wheat at London ¾c lower, but private cables noted ⅜c advance in Liverpool, nearly 1c up in Berlin and Paris strong and advancing. These, with the rather bullish Price Current report on winter wheat seeding, higher domestic markets and the fear that some startling bull news might be sprung on them made the bears timid and they would not sell much. On the other hand, continued large receipts everywhere and the fine weather held in check the bulls, and the buying was as slow and small as the selling. The seaboard clearances were good, amounting to 68,430 pkgs flour and 355,400 bu wheat from four Atlantic ports, but none of these disturbed the market much. A wild-eyed and hair-raising report that 3,000,000 Russians were marching on Constantinople and that consols were lower in London did stir the market up and there was a quick rise in price. A denial of the decline in consols broke the market back very quickly, but all the late cables were so strong (quoting advances of ⅜@⅝c in Liverpool, ¾c in London, 1¼c in Berlin, 1⅜c in Antwerp and ⅜c to 3⅜c in Paris) that the market showed some strength, that finally, however, disappeared and great depression took its place, the close being very weak.

FUTURES—Dec. opened at 95c and sold to 95⅝c to 94⅞c to 96c to 94⅞c to 95⅝@⅛c to 93⅞c and closed at 94c asked. May opened at $1.01⅛ and sold to $1.02¼ to $1.00¼ and closed at $1.00⅝. At close 91⅞c bid and Nov. quotable at 92¾c.

SPOT GRADES—Higher. Decreasing offerings and ready sale, millers taking most grades below No. 2 red which sold to carriers. Most sales of No. 2 red were ¼c higher at 92⅛c, but not worth that after futures broke down. No. 3 red advanced ¼@1c, selling at 88½@89c this side, 89⅛c E. side. No. 4 sold at 83½@83¾c this and 83⅛c E. side. Rejected offered at 70c, no bid. No. 2 hard winter sold at 86⅛@86½c, No. 3 do at 82½c and No. 2 hard spring at 85½c. No. 2 white spring offered in St. L. at 87c, bid 85½c. No. 2 Mediterranean, 90c bid.

Sales—No. 2 red—1 car regular at 92¼c, 1 car do, 5 E. side, 1,600 bu and 5 cars in C. 7 in St. L. and 13 in Cdlt at 92⅛c. No. 3 red—3 cars regular at 88½c, 1 in C. 4 in Cdlt and 5 in St. L. at 88⅛c, 13 in St. L. at 89c, 3 E. side at 89⅛c. No. 4—1 car in St. L. at 83½c, 7 this side at 83¼c, 2 E side at 83⅛c. No. 2 hard winter—1 car in C at 86⅛c, 1 in St. L. at 86½c. No. 3 hard winter—1 car at 82½c. No. 2 hard spring—1 car in St. L. at 85½c.

Samples—Receipts, 167 cars and 1,987 sacks. Firm early, with a few sales at a shade lighter, but very little done as millers were holding off and demanding concessions. Later, when futures broke sharply, it was difficult to find buyers at 1c decline. Sales: Special bin—1 car no grade at 63c, 1 rejected at 70c, 1 do at 77c, 6 do at 80c, 4 do at 82c, 2 do early at 82½c, 1 No. 3 hard at 82½c, 12 No. 4 winter at 84½c, 2 do early at 85½c, 2 do at 89c, 4 No. 3 red at 90c, 1 No. 2 red at 92½c. Track this side—1 car ungraded at 85c, 1 No. 3 red at 89c. Track E. side—1 car No. 3 red at 91c, 4 No. 2 red at 92¾c, 2 do at 93c. Sacks—38 no grade at 70c, 51 rejected at 72c, 21 no grade at 69c, 13 No. 2 white at 91c.

Corn—Fine weather and the prospects for an early movement of the new crop were not in it against small receipts, poor grading of the new corn, a further advance—about ⅜c to 1½c—in Liverpool and the higher wheat markets. The tone was strong most of the session, but late became easy in sympathy with wheat. At close year was ⅛c better, Jan. ⅛c off and May had sellers at the same rates that closed yesterday.

FUTURES—Oct. sold at 50⅜c and Nov. at 41½c and later 41⅛c bid for latter, but still later 41⅞c asked. Year sold at 38⅜c up to 39⅛c and back to 38⅜c. Jan. sold at 38c to 38⅛c and late weakened rapidly, closing with sellers at 37⅞c. May opened at 39⅞@40c, and sold to 40⅛c to 39⅞c to 40⅛c, and at close offered at 39⅜c. Feb. offered at 38⅛c, and 38⅛c bid.

SPOT GRADES—Higher again and very stiff at the advance, the little on sale quickly taken by local and order buyers. No. 2 advanced ½@1c, selling at 51@51¼c, closing at 51c. No. 3 up 1c at 49½c, and for E. Side 50c was bid. For No. 4 the best bid was 45c. No. 2 white was sold at 59½@60, but no other white or color grades offered. No. 3 white 59c bid regular, 59½c for this side; No. 2 color—59¼c bid regular; No. 3 do, 58c bid regular, 58½c this side.

Sales: 1 car E. side, 4 this side and 5 in F. at 51c, 1 in M. and 2 E. side at 51¼c. No. 3—2 cars in M. and 3 regular at 49½c. No. 2 white—2 cars regular at 59½c, 1 do at 60c.

SAMPLES—Sales: 40 sks new white at 40c, 1 car No. 3 E. trk at 50c. Skd lots on orders, 60@61c.

Oats—Quite a demand developed for Nov. and it sold at 28⅛c to 28⅜c, though latter asked at close. May was quiet at 31½c, closing at 31⅛c bid. For Oct. 27¾c bid.

SPOT GRADES—Firm and most grades were higher, but only a moderate demand at the advance asked.

Sales: No. 2—1 car regular at 28c, 1 E. side at 28⅛c; more regular offered at 28c, bid 27¾c. No. 3—1 car in M. at 26½c; bid 26c for regular, 26½c for D. No. 2 color—4 cars in M. at 28½c and some bid for C. No. 2 color—2 cars in M. at 26¾c, same asked for Cdlt. No. 3 white—1 car in F., 3 in M., 2 regular at 27½c; for E. side 28c bid. No. 2 white offered in M. and D. at 29⅛c bid, 29c for regular. No. 4 offered at 26c, bid 24c.

SAMPLES—Before call only an occasional car was offered, but after call a few samples, consisting almost entirely of No. 2 color and No. 2 Northern mixed, were offered, all of which sold at an advance over yesterday, prices indicating a strong and higher market. Sales, Special bin, this side—1 car No. 2 at 28c, 3 No. 2 color at 28¼c, 1 do at 29c, 2 No. 2 Northern mixed at 29⅛c, 1 do at 29¼c. Sacked lots on orders, 33@35c.

Rye—Grade No. 2 sold 1c lower at 86c and more offered at that, but No. 3 steady at 80c. Sales—1 car No. 2 E side at 86c, 1 No. 3 regular and in St. L at 80c, 21 sks at 85c.

Commercial Notes.

New York is trying hard to unload her long wheat.

American markets are now the influence on European exchanges and bourses.

Weather clear; 46 deg. at 12 o'clock. Local forecast: Fair; stationary temperature.

The bulls are pulling everything. Their latest is: Russians within three days march of Constantinople. Are they ever less?

Paris cables reported wheat strong and prices advancing, with a general good demand. Berlin cables 1½ marks higher.

Liverpool wires: "Our St. Petersburg correspondent has not yet confirmed the Russian oats and maize prohibition report. It was spread broadcast over Europe yesterday."

The week's hog packing in the West was 260,000 head, against 300,000 for same week last year. Rather less inclination is shown to hasten the marketing of hogs.

Geo. Bain, an ex-President of the Merchants' Exchange, at one time a leading miller here and always a prominent member of the Exchange, died suddenly this morning.

The last Louisiana weather crop bulletin says the weather has been perfect for harvesting purposes. Cotton is opening fast; picking is nearing completion on the uplands and over half finished on lowlands.

Chicago to Ewald: New York has furnished so many false reports of foreign troubles to prevent a break here that we would not advise buying. They are still long many millions of Dec. wheat and want to unload.

The Cincinnati Price Current says: New wheat crop position improved, but a considerable portion will be sufficiently lacking in vigor to furnish ground for apprehensions from a severe winter. Corn is getting into cribbing and marketing condition rapidly and indications are the crop has been fully estimated.

The position of the markets at London, as given in the Mark Lane Express cables, shows that native wheat is slow, with poor sorts, which comprise the bulk, selling at about 84c, while the average is $1.16¼. American red is about $1.20 and fine California $1.35. Prices of foreign wheat are against holders. Imports since harvest have been 22,597,614 bu, against 12,530,336 bu last year. American flour is reported in request and sells below English.

Cotton is still coming in at a lively rate at McDade, Tex., and the crop was better than was expected. A similar report comes from Cuero, Tex. At Fairland, Tex., the crop is now perhaps about two-thirds out and will average about one-half bale per acre. Austin reports cotton about all picked; a light top crop in some sections. Fredricksburg, very little unpicked, top crop probably damaged by light frost. New Braunfels, picking progressing rapidly, crop short. Grapevine, no top crop. Panter, cotton nearly all open. Round Rock, picking finished on many farms, top crop probably damaged by frost.

The official report from Germany says that the wheat crop is only 18 per cent below the average, or about 74,000,000 bu, against an average of about 91,000,000 bu. The rye crop is 20 per cent below the average, or about 180,000,000 bu. The crop of oats is 12 per cent above the average, and barley 50 per cent above. The combined crops indicate a production of about 669,000,000 bu, against an approximate average of about 710,000,000 bu. The crop of 1890, and the average for previous years, with the consumption and imports, show as follows:

	Crop 1890. bu.	Average crop for 10 years. bu.
Wheat, 60 ℔s	104,020,781	91,254,898
Rye, 56 ℔s	231,007,869	224,270,415

Potatoes, 60 ℔s	856,890,652	878,917,315

Taking rye, wheat and potatoes, the three chief articles of food, the distribution and consumption of the crops were as follows:

	Rye, Bushels.	Wheat, Bushels.	Potatoes, Bushels.

Special Market Letters.

Private Wire to J. P. Grier.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—On war news we had a strong opening in wheat. The first sale in December was at 95½c and it sold up to 96⅛c, but at about this price the realizing was heavy and buying orders few. The price then rapidly declined to 94⅛c and the closing was at about 94½c. The best judgment on the board is upset by war news and export business, neither of which "pan out." We require more substantial support to stem the weakness and further decline and the market closes weak.

Corn has been strong all the session, particularly May. The receivers, who were sellers at about 1c lower prices were good buyers to-day. October and November look low enough. Shippers are the buyers.

Oats steady. The trade in them light at unchanged prices.

Hog products firm, influenced by parties interested in Dec. pork settling up outstanding trades.

The action of our directors permitting the calling of old pork is freely discussed and generally condemned. There is only one safe course to follow and it is to cease trading in an article that is now about unmerchantable and will certainly be unmerchantable on the 1st of January.

Estimated receipts for to-morrow are 400 cars wheat, 170 corn, 250 oats and 24,000 hogs.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Wheat opened rather quiet and a small fraction lower than the closing price yesterday on heavy reports and clear weather in the Northwest, but there was good buying and the market soon firmed up. Later on a private telegram received from Henry Clews of New York saying that Londoners were throwing stocks overboard on a rumor that Russia was assuming an aggressive attitude in Turkey. On the strength of this there was a sudden advance, but it did not hold and the market was soon back to the closing price of yesterday. Dec. opened 95⅛c against 95⅛c at the close yesterday and advanced with immaterial reactions to 96⅛c but at 11 o'clock was quoted at 85⅛c. Corn was firm on reported free takings for export at Baltimore and in sympathy with the strength in wheat Nov. started ⅛c higher at 50c and sold to 50⅜c, receded to 49⅜c, rallied to 50c, weakened and at 11 o'clock stood at 49⅜c. Provisions were firm with grains. January pork started 10c higher at $11.40, touched $11.35, reacted to $11.42½ and at 11 o'clock was quoted at $11.37½.

Cattle—There was a slow drag in the cattle traffic to-day. Buyers were decidedly slow in making offerings and then would not take hold unless concessions of 25c per 100 ℔s lower than yesterday's prices were made and rather than have the cattle standing in the pens they made the drop, everything declining except the best butcher steers, cows and heifers. Good cows and calves are still steady at last week's prices with good demand, but common grades are the same as they have been for several weeks with no demand. Veal calves are off $1.00 to $1.50 per head compared to the values paid this day a week ago. The close was steady at the decline. The quotations are:

Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22, 11 a. m.—The general list in the stock market was dull this morning, but Atchison, Erie, St. Paul and New York Central were very active, and the interest in the trading was largely centered in those stocks. The market exhibited a reactionary temper at first, and the opening prices were small fractions below those of last evening, but a continuation of yesterday's demand caused a small appreciation in the leading stocks, despite the realizations and the hammering of the traders. The advances were insignificant, however, though New York Central after selling down to 114 reached 114⅝, while the only weak point in the market was still Sugar, which dropped from 86⅜ to 85⅛. The general list, however, yielded to the pressure and retired below the level of the opening prices without the development of any special feature of note or material loss in any but the one stock mentioned. The final dealings were marked by increasing dullness, but a firmer tone prevailed, and at 11 o'clock the market while dull was steady to firm generally at insignificant concessions from the opening figures.

Noon—Money is easy at 3@3½ per cent. All life disappeared from the stock market after 11 o'clock, and for a time utter stagnation had possession of the market, no tendencies in prices in either direction. There was some improvement in the late dealings and a few stocks moved up fractional amounts, Rock Island being most conspicuous, but the changes in quotations were in all cases insignificant, and at noon the market was still very dull and rather heavy at insignificant changes from the opening prices.

Sales of stocks to noon: Listed, 13,000; unlisted, 3,400.

SAFE IN PORT.

The City of Rome Reaches Her Dock at Liverpool—That Sailor's Story.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The City of Rome, according to a cablegram received last night, is safe at her dock in Liverpool.

The City of Rome sailed from this port on Saturday, Oct. 10. She carried 201 steerage passengers, 87 second cabin and 64 first cabin, the latter list including the names of many well-known people on both sides of the Atlantic.

Five days after she had sailed, on Wednesday, Oct. 15, an Associated Press dispatch was published in the evening papers making the startling announcement that the City of Rome had been lost off St. Shotts, Newfoundland.

Naturally this announcement, coming as it appraently did from a trustworthy source, caused widespread consternation among the friends of those on board of the steamship. Crowds visited the offices of the Anchor line in this city, anxious for later details. Their fears were allayed in a short time by the receipt of a second dispatch announcing that it was not the Anchor steamer but a cattle ship of the same name from Montreal for Dundee.

All doubt was subsequently set at rest by the publication of a special dispatch from St. Johns, Newfoundland, saying that all reports were based upon a story told by a sailor that a cattle ship had been lost and that all on board, except himself, forty-two persons, had been drowned. The story was not believed and it turned out that no vessel was lost, and that the cattle-tender who told the yarn was half-witted.

NOT A SQUARE DEAL

How Competition for Heating School Buildings Was Prevented.

MANAGER TRACY OF THE CHAMPION CO. TELLS AN INTERESTING TALE.

The Furnace of His Company in the Compton Hill School Was Punched Full of Holes in Order That It Might Be Reported Defective—Evidence of Underhand Work.

The School Board's devotion to the Fuller & Warren system of heating and ventilating the schools is one of the peculiarly remarkable developments of the School Board exposure made by the POST-DISPATCH. It proves beyond any question the potency of co-operation between School Board directors, for it shows that since Agent O'Connor of the Fuller & Warren Co. became a School Board director no other furnace company has had a ghost of a show in securing contracts for work in heating and ventilating the public schools. There is one case in point which illustrates this fact in the most startling manner, and which is still open through the medium of an unpaid bill outstanding against the School Board.

About three years ago, just as Agent O'Connor of the Fuller & Warren Furnace Co. became Director O'Connor of the St. Louis School Board, the Champion Heating & Ventilating Co., which has its office at No. 2931 Olive street, secured the contract for heating the Compton Hill School. The contract was secured before Director O'Connor had found time to fully organize the Fuller & Warren co-operation corps inside the School Board. It was secured on a guarantee such as the Fuller & Warren company has never offered. The Champion company guaranteed in its bid that with one furnace, costing $650, it would do the work of two Fuller & Warren furnaces, costing at that time, it is stated, $3,000; that it would also effect a saving of 75 per cent in fuel, and that the Champion company would bind itself for three years to keep the furnace in order, attending to all repairs, for the nominal sum of $25 per year. Under this guarantee the contract was awarded to the Champion company.

A STARTLING DISCOVERY.

Manager Tracy of that company states that the contract was awarded in the face of bitter opposition from Director O'Connor and that from the moment the furnace was placed in the Compton Hill School Director O'Connor openly fought the company in its efforts to secure other similar contracts. The history of their one contract, ending as it did in a Grand-jury investigation and an unpaid bill aggregating over $200, for which the Champion Co. is still whistling vainly, is interesting. It has some apparently mysterious features, and it shows in its concluding chapters a characteristic method of shutting off bids threatened to interfere with the Fuller & Warren School Board "cinch."

Shortly after the Champion furnace was placed in the Compton Hill School there began a strange series of mishaps. The Champion Co. was notified one day that the large pipe leading from the furnace through the chimney had "burnt out." This occurred almost before the new furnace had really gotten under full headway, and it was investigated by Manager Tracy with the gravest misgiving. The result of that investigation was the discovery that the pipe had not "burnt out," but that several holes had been punched through it, the evidence of such work being plainly perceptible in the appearance of the pipes. School Director McEntire was present when the condition of the pipe was investigated, and he agreed unqualifiedly with Manager Tracy that there had been foul play in the matter. There was no way of fixing the responsibility for such work, and as fortunately the draft from the furnace was so strong that the holes in the pipe did not seriously affect the work of the furnace, there was no further action taken at that time.

Soon afterwards, however, a more serious mishap followed. The pipe collapsed and the up-draft of the Champion furnace was shut off in consequence. Manager Tracy again investigated, and it was found that an attempt had been made to wrench out the pipe fastenings in the furnace chimney. A heavy iron bar had been used for the purpose, but instead of wrenching the pipe loose the only effect had been to force its sides together, so as to completely close it up. The evidence of underhand work was so apparent that an investigation followed. The janitor of the Compton Hill School asserted that no one but himself had access to the school after school hours, and it being impossible to develop any facts save those that the furnace had been trifled with, the investigation ended without results. The Champion Co. placed the pipe and chimney in order and since that time there has been no trouble in the Compton Hill School.

But there was trouble in collecting the bill for the work. Manager Tracy charges that Director O'Connor of the rival Fuller & Warren Furnace Co. made a point of obstructing the progress of the Champion Co.'s bill toward payment. For meeting after meeting the bill, it is stated, was laid over, and it was two years before any payment was made, owing to this system of "standing off" the outside contractor. When the bill was paid there was left a balance of something over $200 for work on the chimney where the mysterious mishaps had occurred, and that balance is outstanding against the board still. In the course of the Champion company's efforts to collect this balance, the mystery of the underhand work done at the Compton Hill School was brought before the Grand-jury in the hope of discovering some trace of the parties who had perpetrated it. But again, it is stated, the only result reached was that there had been such work done by unknown parties.

Since that time the Champion Co. has kept the Compton Hill furnace in good order at the stipulated cost of $25 per year. The company states that they have the testimony of the janitor of the school to the effect that the furnace has never failed to keep the requisite temperature of 75 deg. in the school, and that the amount of fuel necessary for such work had not exceeded the company's estimate when it guaranteed a saving of 75 per cent. Had this not been the case, the School Board had the Champion Co. bound under contract to take out its furnace and replace it with any other that the board might designate. The Champion furnace is still in the Compton Hill School, although not yet fully paid for. This ends the company's story of the strange trouble with that one furnace, and the story then turns to the company's efforts to secure other contracts.

A REGULAR STONE WALL.

By that time, however, the Fuller & Warren-O'Connor clique was in good working order in the board, and it proved a stone wall, against which other furnace companies came to a dead standstill in their efforts to secure contracts for the public school work. Manager Tracy charges that, although his bids guaranteed to the School Board a great reduction in the original cost, a saving of 75 per cent in fuel, and a contract to keep the furnaces in good order for three years at a cost of $25 per year, all of which had been proven by the Compton Hill contract, his company has never been able to secure another contract. Manager Tracy charges further that in some instances he was even debarred from making a bid by the fact that the board would not furnish the Champion Co. with the plans upon which a bid could be based, and that the "shut-out" dodge was also tried successfully with other furnace companies which threatened dangerous competition with the Fuller & Warren Co. After several ineffectual attempts to secure School Board contracts, the Champion Heater & Ventilator Co. dropped out of the struggle in disgust. School Director O'Connor, agent of the Fuller & Warren Furnace Co., had proved to them, as he has others, that he could make it so hot for companies daring to compete with him that they would be glad to abandon the field. His "ring cinch" inside the board was too strong to be overcome by companies whose only claim to a School Board contract was that they would guarantee to do better work for less money.

LIQUID BREAD.

An Absolutely Pure Malt Extract.

When we first conceived the idea to manufacture this nutritive tonic we were uncertain as to success, but knowing there was abundant room and place for it if a really fine article could be produced, the experiment was made. It was our most earnest desire to produce, through the use of the choicest materials and most approved modern scientific appliances, aided by the highest educated skill and intelligence, a quality of Malt Extract unequaled by any other that had yet been put before the public. It was not merely an article that would sell that we sought to create. IT WAS ONE OF THE STRICTEST INTRINSIC MERIT that we aimed to produce, and to accomplish this we spared neither time, labor nor expense. Three years passed while we were yet continuously applying ourselves diligently to the task of bringing from the sum of our labors the result sought for, but we succeeded, and for nearly eight years the verdict of the medical schools and the public throughout this land has been attested and sealed by their appreciation of its superior merit, as the continuously growing demand through each successive year since its introduction to the people has shown. Its analysis, which we have often published, proves it to be the most delicate, and, at the same time, the most nutritious of all modern Malt Liquids. It is pleasant to the taste, gracious to the stomach and generous in its production of new blood and flesh, a reinvigorator of mind and body, besides being to old people, invalids, delicate children and nursing mothers a priceless panacea. The leading physicians prescribe it. It is sold everywhere by Grocers and Druggists.

REAL ESTATE INTERESTS.

A New Building on Seventh and Olive —A $22,500 Sale on Broadway.

Before the year is out the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. will commence tearing down the old building, known as Scott's Hotel, at the southeast corner of Olive and Seventh streets, to make room for a fine office structure which the company is going to erect upon the premises. The present occupant has been notified to vacate by Dec. 1. His lease expiring at that time, he has already secured a new place, next south of the Globe building on Sixth street, at a rental of $3,000 a year, where his business will be re-established.

Anticipating that the company would get possession of the property at the corner of Olive and Seventh streets during the present year, plans for the improvement of the site have been discussed by the Board of Directors for some time past, and an architect is now at work upon the design. It will probably not be less than an eight-story structure of elaborate architectural design, intended to be equally if not more attractive than the plan outlined for the Mercantile Club building, or the improvement suggested for the northwest corner of Olive and Seventh. Buildings of this character, the one Mr. Wainwright is building on the northwest corner of Seventh and Chestnut and the one shortly to be commenced by the Mercantile Club at the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust, together with others of same class proposed and likely to be built within the next two years will make Seventh street property much more valuable than it is now. It is not unlikely that inside of two years a handsome eight to twelve-story office building will be built on the northeast corner of Seventh and Locust streets, and negotiations for a similar improvement on a corner of Seventh and Pine streets are now under way. The corner for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co.'s new building was secured under a ninety-nine-year lease last spring, the annual consideration therefor to the Gay estate, owners of the fee, being $4,700 and taxes. The property has a frontage of 22 feet 3 inches on Olive street by a depth of 58 feet 5 inches on Seventh, equivalent to 1,300 square feet of ground. The total valuation placed upon this property was $94,000; that would be at the rate, in round figures, of $73 a square foot.

MRS. PATCHEN'S $22,500 PURCHASE.

Mrs. Mary D. Patchen has purchased the old business property numbered 9 South Broadway, next adjoining the premises she owns on the north, for $22,500, and will in all probability tear away the antiquated structures before long to make room for a fine building, which she proposes to build there. This last purchase, together with the property numbered 7 South Broadway, gives Mrs. Patchen a tatal frontage of 46 feet at that point, by a depth of 130 feet running back to an alley. It is an admirable site for a good improvement in a section of the city which has enhanced very considerably in its real estate values within the past two years. At the present time the property she bought is occupied as a lamp store, the two upper floors of the three-story structure being rented out for various purposes, the total income being $1,560 a year. The premises belonged to the estate of James Monk. They front 22 feet 8½ inches by a depth of 130 feet. The consideration paid was $22,500. This is practically $1,000 a foot. The price for this inside property in that locality shows a very fair increase in values, as it has not been much longer than a year since Ellis Wainwright got the sixty feet at the northeast corner of Broadway and Walnut at $1,000 a foot. From this record it is plain to be seen that inside property is worth equally as much now as corners sold for in that locality a few months since.

READY TO ACCEPT BIDS.

Specifications for work and materials required for the six-story Mercantile Club building, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, have at last been issued, and are now in the hands of contractors, who are required to have their bids in by 12 o'clock, noon, on the 10th of November. Unless these bids are rejected the contract to build the structure will be let at that time, or shortly afterwards. The specifications are voluminous. They are printed and bound in book form in a work of 122 pages, 5x7½ inches in size.

AN ADVERTISING TURTLE.

A large box terrapin traveling around at the corner of Sixth and Olive streets to-day occasioned a good deal of curiosity as an advertisement, "Long View on the 'Frisco" being inscribed on the turtle's back.

THE EFFECT OF IMPROVEMENT.

The selection of Olive and Ninth streets for the $1,000,000 hotel site and the near completion of the Hagan Opera-house on Tenth street at the corner of Pine has stimulated a good deal of interest in Pine street property. Between Tenth and Eleventh streets some recent purchases at advanced prices have been made lately, the supposition being that the new City Hall and the new Union Depot will also have a potent influence in enhancing the value of Pine street business sites, especially those on that portion of the street east of Twelfth.

OTHER SALES.

Ryan & Sheppard report the sale of 850 feet of ground consisting of detached parcels on Oak Hill avenue, Wyoming street, Connecticut street and Juniatta street in Oak Hill place, at $10 a foot from Geo. H. Brueggeman to William H. Shea, who bought to improve. Bright.

A new Derby I must have.

Reuben, Reuben, I've been thinking,
Humphrey's is the place for you
To make your purchase of a Derby new.

Cynthia, Cynthia I've been thinking,
Humphrey's is the place for me
To make my purchase of a Derby new.

Well, we guess our friends are right, for the Derbys on sale this week in our Hat Department at $1.50 are actually worth, and such as usually sell for, $2.50, $3 and $3.50. Those who miss this special sale, which ends Saturday night, will most surely have cause for regret.

THE EASIEST THING IN LIFE.
BUT SEE THE ONLY McNICHOLS.

The leaves are slowly drifting down,
The air is blue and still,
The maples burned to red and brown,
Stand trembling on the hill.
The river murmurs in its flow,
Of change that comes to all,
The saddening truth comes sure but slow,
We're slipping into fall.

No more the saucy bluebird roves
Through honeysuckle vines,
No more the bee in flowing groves
Drinks of the jasmine wines.
All day one snowy cloud will float
In one blue lake of space,
And every sound seems far remote;
We've got to change our base.

No longer idle loungers sleep
On bench or upland mound,
They've got to have a bed to keep,
Where rest comes sure and sound.
The homeless man no longer shares
His haymow with a tramp,
The weather's caught him unawares,
His sheets are cold and damp.

So, never mind the lack of cash,
Some pockets always leak;
In buying here you'll not be rash,
You pay bills by the week.
Mac is the chap can make a change.
His household goods are best,
From Parlor Lamp to Kitchen Range
He'll fit you up a nest.

Not a doubt that he has changed the lives of hundreds from lodging-house misery to domestic ownership and comfort. Even if you have but one room have it nice, new and as you like it. Good beds and bedding are luxuries, but easily obtained in this age and by this generous plan of

Mr. Skinker Wants a Boulevard.

The project of Commissioner Murphy for a boulevard 200 or 250 feet wide seems to have attracted general attention, particularly among the property owners in the West End. It seems simply to have resolved itself into a question of location. The street designated by Commissioner Murphy was Union avenue from Florissant avenue to the south side of Forest Park. Union avenue, the Commissioner says, is the natural center of the city, and will in a few years be the dividing street that Grand avenue is now. Ernest P. Bell, the stock raiser, is one of the many who actively indorse the plan of the Commissioner and will help him to carry it out. Thos. K. Skinker, who owns a large tract of land just inside the city limits on the west side of Forest Park, wants the street known as the Skinker road, which runs north and south through this tract, made a boulevard, and the people who live by it north of the park have joined him in the effort. Commissioner Murphy says that it is not necessary to include this in the plans to make a boulevard of it. The Street Department, upon the request of Mr. Skinker, has already widened the street from 40 to 100 feet, and will make it the width of 200 feet, the greatest boulevard width, upon petition.

Mr. Mitchell Is Unreasonable.

John Mitchell, the man who called on the Board of Public Improvements yesterday, representing the stone-cutters of the city, and asked the commissioners to order the carving on the City Hall stone to be done immediately so as to give local mechanics work, asserts that he was treated contemptuously by President George F. Burnet and Commissioner M. L. Holman. "There was an accent of scorn in Mr. Burnet's voice when he read my note," said Mitchell to-day, "and he pretended that he couldn't make out the words, so he prejudiced my case in the beginning. A citizen having the temerity to appear before the aristocratic board to look for work is insulted by the President and is then held up before the public in an undeservedly ridiculous light."

President Burnet says that he neither expressed nor felt any contempt for Mitchell. "The fact is that the note was so badly written that I couldn't read it," said he. "I am sorry for him and all who like him are out of work, but the Board of Public Improvements can't change the plans for the City Hall for his benefit. He is unreasonable. I doubt very much if the drawings for the carvings have been made yet."

The Jefferson Avenue Cars.

The members of the Railway Committee of the House of Delegates who have in charge John Scullin's bill to change the motive power of the Jefferson avenue line from mules to electricity have stopped thinking about the bill, and until the railway managers themselves revive it, it is as dead as Manager George F. Durant's bill to put the telephone wires under ground. Delegate Jas. P. Eagan of the committee said to-day: "We are not going to touch the line until the men who own the road agree on what they want. John Scullin says he wants electricity; George Capen wants two-horse cars, and Maffitt something else. Then, too, the delegates here from the southern part of the city want the road extended to Arsenal street. We have decided to let it alone for the present."

Water for Clifton Heights.

Clifton Heights now has a very good prospect of getting water from the city mains. The pretty little suburb has been built up this far without obtaining a connection with the city water pipes and the people had to depend entirely upon wells and cisterns. Delegate Thomas Kaye has been at the City Hall every day for a week looking over maps and plans of streets with Water Commissioner M. L. Holman, and the Commissioner has finally decided to run pipes off the New Manchester road up Knox avenue to Famous avenue, which is the main street of the Heights. Delegate Kaye is now urging the Commissioner to lay the pipes before the winter begins and makes the ground to hard for digging.

A NORTH END BOYCOTT.

Mass-Meetings To-Night to Demand Rapid Street Car Transit.

The denizens of North St. Louis have become tired of waiting for the rapid transit promised by several of the street car lines of that section of the city and are taking steps to bring the roads to terms. Two mass-meetings have been called for this evening, one of the citizens patronizing the Northern Central, Union and Cass Avenue lines, and another of those residing farther east who have been using the cars of the Benton-Bellefontaine and Union lines. The object of the gatherings is to obtain pledges from those present that they will boycott the lines in question unless satisfactory assurances are received that the horses and mules will soon be replace by more rapid motive power. Already a number have agreed to put the boycott in force.

THE SURPLUS FUND.

Another Circular Distributed by the Real Estate Committee.

The following circular was adopted by the Board of Directors and the Real Estate Committee of the Merchants' Exchange to-day:

> The Board of Directors and the Real Estate Committee of the Merchants' Exchange beg to present for the consideration of the members and for their decision by ballot on Friday, Oct. 30, the amendment to the rules, as herewith inclosed, which if adopted will mark a new era in our affairs, inasmuch as it will pave the way towards securing a permanent home for the Exchange.
> The present condition of our surplus or reserve fund, which (owing to the decline in bonds) has not in three years netted us any income, together with the fact that we are still under a high lease, which upon expiration in 1895 will have to be renewed (unless we provide our own quarters), renders it unnecessary for us to advance any argument in favor of the adoption of the amendment, which looks to a real estate investment in place of the present bonds, and the securing of permanent quarters of our own.
> Further delay in the accomplishment of this desired object would be unwise, since as said above our lease has but a few years to run and in case it is decided to remove from our present location, suitable sites for new quarters will more than likely increase in value each succeeding year.

Louis Spellbrink Injured.

Louis Spellbrink, the undertaker and livery stable keeper at 1321 Franklin avenue, met with a serious accident about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on Easton avenue, between Marcus and Cora avenues. He was driving a spirited team of horses in advance of a funeral, and they became frightened at a grip car bell. They ran away and upset the buggy, throwing Mr. Spellbrink to the street. His head and face were cut on the curb-stone, and his right hip was dislocated. He was so badly hurt it was found necessary to call an ambulance and remove him to his home. The horses were caught a few blocks further west.

Otto Inman, a traveling salesman, was arrested last night by Detectives McGrath and Walsh, on Twenty-seventh and Howard streets. He is wanted in Beemer, Neb. About a month ago he is said to have cashed a draft for $75 on the Beemer Bank, which proved to be worthless.

THE NUMBER OF SOCIAL AFFAIRS GREATLY ON THE INCREASE.

A new game will be introduced this season called "hurly," which is said to be similar to baccarat. No hurly clubs have been formed as yet, but it is rumored that it will be introduced in a very fashionable set.

A "LINE AND STAFF" ROW.

Hard Feeling in the Navy Over the Inspection of a New Cruiser.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Washington advices say that an order just issued assigning Commander W. H. Brownson as general inspector of the work of construction on Cruiser No. 10, building at the Columbia Iron Works, Baltimore, promises to lead to one of the liveliest "line and staff" rows the navy has experienced for many a day. This is the first time a line officer has been detailed as inspector and the constructing and engineer officers made subordinate to him. Under the orders issued to Commander Brownson and to the Bureau of Construction and Repairs and Steam Engineering that officer is to inspect the work done on the vessel by the naval constructor and engineer on duty at the Columbian Iron Words, and to report upon any changes in the construction or fitting out of the ship he may deem necessary. All correspondence with the other officers on duty at the ship building yard will pass through his hands. In other words Commander Brownson is placed in command of the vessel while she is undergoing construction, and the constructor and engineer engaged upon her are made subordinate to him.

The reason assigned for this change of policy is that prospective commanders of new ships should be on hand during the progress of construction in order that they may see and suggest many matters of detail that would be overlooked by the constructor and engineer, who, although experts in the mechanical and technical features of construction, have not the practical experience to see to all the things that are needed. The construction and engineer bureaus, however consider that the detail is an unjust reflection on their officers, who are specially trained to build ships, and that it is a usurpation of their authority to put an officer over them whose duty it is to sail, not build ships.

Questions Regarding a Person's Financial Affairs Must Be Answered.

One of the greatest difficulties the census enumerators experienced in taking the last census was in getting information regarding home mortgages, loans, debts and financial statistics. It appears that their work in this line has not been as complete as desired. Numbers of people refused to answer these queries, and they have recently received from the Superintendent of Census a printed slip asking the objectionable questions, and also a copy of the act of Congress providing a penalty in case of refusal to answer the questions. The objectors are still protesting, and claim that the department has no right to ask such questions, and that the act of Congress will not stand in court. United States District Attorney Reynolds when asked about the matter this morning said he had heard nothing of it, but supposed the statistics in this line might be incomplete and that the Census Bureau was trying to complete its information before tabulating the statistics. He said the department had a right to demand that the questions be answered, and that he would prosecute under the act of Congress any persons who were reported to him by the department for refusing to answer. While the census was being taken by enumerators he had secured a number of convictions under the act, the penalties ranging from $10 to $25.

HORSE AND OWNER.

The Stallion St. Blaise and Charles Reed, His Purchaser.

HOW THE SON OF HERMIT WON THE ENGLISH DERBY.

His Career on the English Turf—Something About Charles Reed's History—More World's Trotting Records Smashed—Direct Outpaces Hal Pointer—Jere Dunn Has a Fight.

St. Blaise stands sixteen hands and a half inch high. He is a dark chestnut, with a white blaze in his face, and has three white legs. As a racehorse he took high rank in England. He was bred by Lord Alington in 1880, and started but four times as a 2-year-old. He began by winning the Stockbridge Biennial stakes, beating four others. At Goodwood he ran second to Elzevir for the Molecomb stakes. He then ran unplaced to Ladislas for the Dewhurst plate. Two days later he won the Troy stakes at Newmarket.

Frank Leslie's Weekly for the current week gives the following account of his subsequent turf performances: "As a 3-year-old St. Blaise started six times. He began badly, running unplaced in the Two Thousand Guineas to Lord Falmouth's colt, Galliard. Then came the Derby. Galliard was a great favorite, but the heavy sums Lord Alington, Sir Frederick Johnstone, the Prince of Wales and the 'Marlborough House party' invested on St. Blaise sent him to the post second choice. The race was the most sensational Derby of the decade. The finish was terrific. Galliard and Highland Chief had a desperate struggle, and were so exhausted that Wood, the jockey on St. Blaise, brought his colt up and beat them both, St. Blaise winning by a neck, Highland Chief second, a neck ahead of Galliard. All sorts of rumors were afloat, and to this day 'St. Blaise's Derby' is discussed among English turfites. One story is that Highland Chief won in the opinion of most spectators, but the judge, with characteristic British loyalty, gave it to St. Blaise because he was 'the Prince's horse.' Another is that Galliard was winning, but was 'pulled' by the late Fred Archer to let Highland Chief win, he having bet on that colt, which was trained by his brother, but that St. Blaise slipped past and upset the 'good thing.' What gave strength to this story was the fact that Lord Falmouth, Galliard's owner, soon after retired from racing, selling every horse in his possession. The truth probably is that Galliard and Highland Chief were exhausted after their severe struggle, and St. Blaise, who had been running easily behind, had the most power left, and outfooted both of them in the last few strides. Galliard was a great favorite, and when the public loses its money it is apt to impute motives."

Charles Reed, the new owner of St. Blaise, is one of the best known breeders in the country. At his farm he has about seventy brood mares, among them being Thora, and he has also ten stallions. Two years ago he purchased French Park, the phenomenal 2-year-old, for a stallion. French Park died soon after the purchase was made. Another reverse he received was the loss of that grand young Hermit stallion, Mr. Pickwick. Early this season he purchased Exile from W. Lakeland. His sale of yearlings this year was one of the best of the season.

Charley Reed is a New Yorker, bred and born. He worked as a boy in Stewart's store for $1 a week. He was always a shrewd man, and when started as a bookmaker he soon made money. He is one of the nerviest betters in the country. For years he made a book on the English Derby, and one of the hardest knock-downs he got was when St. Blaise won in 1883. He was a partner with John Morrissey in the Saratoga track and club-house, and sold his interest four years ago to Albert Spencer. Every one speaks well of Charley Reed, and to those who are really in want he is always very generous.

DIRECT WON.

The second pacing contest between Hal Pointer and Direct came off at Cumberland Park, Nashville, Tenn., yesterday, in the presence of the largest crowd ever seen at a trotting match in that state. Hal Pointer, on account of his former easy victory over California pacers, was a heavy favorite. Before the first heat Pointer sold for $100, while Direct could be had for $35 in the pools. Even money and $6 to $5 was given against Direct in the books. The betting before the second heat was also heavily in favor of Pointer, but Direct's second heat brought him up with a jump, and he went to the post upon the third heat selling $10 to Pointer's $5. The summary was as follows, match purse $3,000 added.

Time—2:10, 2:09¼ and 2:11.

The opening event was a 2:40 class trot, unfinished from yesterday. Nashville won three straight heats, his time being 2:29, 2:28 and 2:31.

A 2-year-old pacing stake for a $500 purse followed. Natalie Wilkes won in a walk.

The last event of the day was a 2:30 class trot for a guaranteed stake of $2,500. Lord Clifton took two heats in 2:28½ and 2:21¼.

AT INDEPENDENCE.

The Independence, Io., meeting continued yesterday.

The opening event was a 2:40 class trot which had seventeen starters. Lady Savage won three heats. Her time was 2:30, 2:30½ and 2:29¼.

Another 2:40 pace followed. True captured three straight heats. His time was 2:36¾, 2:27½ and 2:23¾.

A 2:45 class trot for 3-year-olds closed the day's sport. Bellou took it in a walk. His time was 2:35¾, 2:31¼ and 2:33.

TROTTING AT PHILADELPHIA.

The Belmont Driving Association of Philadelphia opened up its fall meeting yesterday. A 2:40 class trot opened up the day's sport. Ben S. and Claudius each took two heats. The deciding heat will be run off to-day. The second and last event was also unfinished, Bravo and Maggie B. each capturing two heats.

THE WINCHESTER MEETING.

The fall trotting meeting at Winchester, Ky., opened up in fine style yesterday. A good crowd was present and witnessed an excellent day's sport. Honest George captured the free-for-all trot. His time was 2:19¼, 2:19, 2:19¾.

A 3:00 class trot followed—Bannermark took it handily. His time was 2:34½, 2:32¼, 2:32¼. A 2:27 class trot closed the day's events. It was taken by Incense, whose time was 2:31¼, 2:30, 2:27¾.

CALIFORNIA RECORD BREAKERS.

STOCKTON, Cal., Oct. 22.—The Palo Alto yearling, Ball Bird, and 2-year old, Arion, who broke the world's trotting records here a short time ago for their respective ages, succeeded yesterday in lowering their records still farther. Ball Bird yesterday lowered her record from 2:27¾ to 2:26¼, her time by quarters being as follows: :37½, 1:14, 1:51, 2:26¼. The filly did not make a skip or break.

Arion, by Electioneer, who knocked several seconds a few days ago off the 2-year-old record, formerly held by Sunol, yesterday lowered his own record from 2:15¾ to 2:14½, making the quarters as follows: :34½, 1:07, 1:41¼, 2:14½.

Palo Alto went against his own record of 2:12¼ and went a mile in 2:11¼, as follows by quarters: :33¼, 1:05¾, 1:39¼, 2:11¼. The horse came out lame for the trial but warmed up later.

Besides the wonderful performances on the Stockton track yesterday by the Palo Alto trotters, records were made by other trotters. Valensins Sid Fleet, 2-year-old, by Sidney, made 2:26½ in a match race. The Palo Alto mare, Norhawk, by Norval, who made a record here a week ago of 2:28½, made 2:20½. Frow-Frow, a yearling, by Sidney, made 2:41.

The meeting was adjourned to next Tuesday when Marvin will probably drive Sunol again if the weather is good, and she comes around all right. He received a warm congratulatory telegram from Mr. Bonner yesterday, and the New York owner said he would leave Sunol here with Marvin another month to do as he pleased with her.

COMMON WILL RETIRE TO THE STUD.

Common will probably be retired to the stud forthwith and will never again make an appearance on a race-course. His late owners, Lord Abingdon and Sir Frederick Johnstone, netted £15,960 in stakes through him. Mr. Blundell Maple has never received any overtures for the matches with Queen's Birthday that have been talked about a good deal, according to our latest exchanges. He is, however, open to run either one or two matches at weight for age, the first over the two middle miles on the day following the decision of the Two Thousand Guineas next spring, and the other over the Derby course on the Tuesday of the Epsom summer meeting, the stake to be not less than £10,000 a side, £5,000 forfeit. According to the scale Common would have to put up 130 pounds against Queen's Birthday's 135 pounds in the former, and 126 pounds against the other's 129 pounds in the latter event.

TROTTERS FOR WORK-HORSES.

W. R. Allen, who has for many years been identified with St. Louis, the principal portion of his business interests being located there and who went into the breeding of trotters on an expensive scale about three years ago, his farm being located at Pittsfield, Mass., does not believe in raising plenty of horses, even though they are high bred ones, and then buying others for the light work to be done on the farm.

At his Massachusetts place there is a son of Phallamont drawing corn fodder into the field and the well-known trotters Elista, 2:20¾, and Geneva, 2:19½, have been driven together on the road. Sobrante, that is by Goldsmith Maid's son Strangler, and out of a daughter of the famous old-time trotter, Lucy, 2:18¼, pulls a top wagon around the farm and, as his pedigree includes the blood of Lady Thorne in addition to the mares already mentioned, he is necessarily a valuable animal.

RECKLESS RIDING.

Of racing accidents and reckless riding at Latonia "Broad Church" thus discourses in the Spirit of the Times: "Accidents were entirely too numerous here in the early part of the meeting, and one filly, Abbie W., lost her life, while two others, Orlic and Matilda, were probably permanently disabled. The jockeys escaped with slight injuries. It is a bit curious that all the accidents occurred on the same spot, where the horses turned into the homestretch. At that particular point there is necessarily a strain on the animals, and added to that there doubtless was unnecessary crowding or jostling, which is becoming altogether too common both East and West. For four or five days in the early part of the meeting there was some mishap or other at Latonia, when the Executive Committee issued a peremptory order warning jockeys to be particularly careful in future, and avoid jostling and crowding. The very next day two or three horses were thrown on the first turn, and not very far from the eyes of the judges. An investigation was instituted immediately after the race, and a number of jockeys and others were examined. The result was that Jockey Bunn was suspended for the meeting, the proof against him being considered very strong. Bunn had ridden in every race where horses and jockeys had been thrown, and it was considered a bit significant that after his suspension not an accident marred the sport at Latonia.

THE RING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 22.—After the Occidental directors had declared the Maber-Mahan fight off last night on account of the former's poor condition, he being pronounced ill, Maber met Mahan outside the ring and through his backer posted a thousand dollars forfeit at once to fight Mahan any time. He also offered to go out and fight anywhere for a hundred dollars. Mahan declined the proposition on the ground that it was not legal to fight outside of an organized club, and that as physicians had decided Maber in no condition, he (Mahan) refused to meet him at all. Maber expressed the opinion that the change of odds from $100 to $80 on him to $20 to $16 in Mahan's favor just before time to enter the ring had much to do with the club's action. President Robinson denied this, however, and on his promise to pay Maber half of the purse the matter was dropped and the spectators regaled with a ten-round contest between local boxers.

JERE DUNN FLOORS BILLY TRACY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—"Billy Tracy knocked out by Jere Dunn!" exclaims a morning paper. It was a short but decisive fight, and occurred in the parlors of Jimmy Wakely's sporting resort at Sixth avenue and Forty-second street. Tracy, leaning against the bar, was chatting with Wakely when Jere sauntered into the rooms. Cordial greetings were exchanged and wine soon flowed freely and the talk became general. Finally the discussion became decidedly hot on referees' decisions.

"I always act as squarely as I know how, Billy," said Jere.

"You're a —— liar," shouted Tracy.

Jere, quick as a flash, drew up his big right fist, and it landed with a crash on Tracy's jaw. Tracy went reeling across the room, finally falling on his back. Wakely and his lieutenants interfered and prevented bloodshed.

"Good night, Jimmy," exclaimed Dunn, as he moved toward the door, casting a sneering glance at his enemy. "Good night, everybody," and he left the place.

The first champion of England as recognized by the literature of the day was James Figg, says "Pendragon" in the Buffalo News. He tried to popularize the ring by opening an amphitheater in London and keeping the patrons cut down to the respectable class. England's greatest fighters had the names of Pipes and Greetings. George Taylor followed in the line of British champions. Next came Jack Broughton, who stripped boxing of much of rough and tumble nature. Broughton thoroughly revised the ring rules, and vigorously prohibited "gouging," the scientific term for putting out the eye of an antagonist with the thumb; "purling," meant kicking a man when he was down with nailed shoes; striking in vital spots below the waistband, and seizing a man when on his knees and pounding him to death. All these outrageous practices were allowable before Broughton's advent to the head of the profession. These changes were brought about in 1743. Broughton held the championship for half a generation. In 1751 he met a fighter by the name of Stack, who blinded him in fourteen minutes and won the fight. The Duke of Cumberland backed Broughton and lost £10,000 on the fight. In line came Edward Hunt, a pupil of Broughton, Bill Stevens, Bill Darts, Harry Sellars, Stephen Oliver, Tom Johnson, and Ben Bren. The advent of Mendoza marked the beginning of the second era of the prize ring. Like Broughton, Mendoza, a London Hebrew of Poutuguese descent, was a good deal of a reformer. He was well educated and endeavored in every way possible to refine and humanize the contests of the ring. Pugilistic history says that he was a natural genius in the use of his fists, and it is believed that he was the most scientific boxer that ever lived.

SWISS TURNVEREIN ELECTS OFFICERS.

The Swiss National Turnverein elected officers for the current year last evening as follows: Sprecher, C. Schultes; Second Sprecher, G. Blattner; Turnevent, J. Demuth; Kassenwart, Jac Wartman; Recording Secretary, Ernest Althaus; Financial Secretary, Geo. Wildberger; Collector, Adolph Schachenman; Executive Committee, Louis Eisenhardt, Paul Thuermer, Christ Risch; Turn Committee, Fritz Oerth, Jac Janka, Louis Eisenhardt, Paul Thuermer, Jac Demuth. Next Sunday the verein will give a concert and gymnastic exhibition at Central Turner Hall, and the public will be at liberty to inspect the different apartments—parlor, library, reading-room, their hall, ball alley, bath-rooms, etc.

WILL GIVE A FEST.

The Gruetli Verein gives a Gruetlifest on Nov. 21, and they intend to make it an event of more than ordinary interest to the Swiss people of St. Louis.

BOWLING.

The celebrated "Cocked Hat League" is getting together again for the season of 1891-92. One or two of the clubs have dropped out, but the vacancy is supplied by others, and the League will be composed as follows: Grand, Home Crescent, St. Louis, Stars, Office Men's, and a new club not yet named. The Grand began practice last week; the Home Crescent this week; the Crescents will begin next Wednesday, the Stars on Friday evening. The dates and place of play are as follows: Monday—Grand at "The Grand," Sixth and Pine streets. Tuesday—The new club at the Grand. Wednesday—St. Louis at the Grand. Thursday—Home Crescent at St. Louis avenue and Twenty-second street. Friday—The Stars at the Grand. Office Men—On their own alley, evening not fixed.

A "Ten Pin Association" is being organized. The movers in the project are the "Centrals," rolling at the Turnverein, Chouteau avenue and Fourteenth street. Billy Medart is hustling around to get the boys together, and the association will be started in a few days. The organizers hope to make an arrangement by which the matches of the association will all be rolled on one alley, probably at "The Grand."

There are fully 150 alleys in St. Louis and the coming season promises to be the liveliest St. Louis has ever known. In residences built by the rich it is becoming extremely fashionable to include a ball alley in the instructions given to the architect.

BASE BALL GOSSIP.

William Barnie, who will handle the Athletics next season, was in Cincinnati the early part of this week endeavoring to induce several of the Cincinnati League team to sign with him for next season. Barnie says he wants Rhines and Harrington, the crack battery, Second Baseman McFee and Centerfielder Bug Holliday.

Norman Bauer, who is pitching a stiff game for Sioux City, was formerly an opera singer with quite a reputation. He can make more money playing ball, he says.

Milwaukee will have a regular stonewall infield next season in Carney, Canovan, Shock and Dahlen, who are a quartette hard to beat. The Brewers will bear watching in 1892.

John Healy is spending a few days in the city. He is on his way to his home at Cairo, Ill. The long Egyptian twirler has signed again with Baltimore for next year. He did excellent work at the close of the season, pitching the club into third position.

A Philadelphia paper is credited with saying that First Baseman Taylor of the Louisville Association team will replace John Reilly on the Cincinnati team in 1892. Catcher Miller and Third Baseman Reilly of Pittsburg are said to be booked for the Porkopolis aggregation in 1892.

Where will the Chicago team be next season? According to apparently reliable reports, Hutchison, Gumbert, Kittridge, Pfeffer, Cooney, Dohlen, Wilmot, Ryan and Burns will wear Association uniforms, which will leave Anson to win the pennant with Carroll, Vickery, Schriver, Merritt and Luby.

MASCAGNI'S MUSIC.

THE MEASURES THAT HAVE CAPTIVATED THE MUSICAL WORLD.

His Brilliant Musical Treatment of a Simple Story—Reminders of Other Composers—Its Novelties and Attractive Points—News of the Stage.

Pietro Mascagni, the young and already famous composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana," has sometimes been compared to Wagner as the musician of the future. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The only points of likeness are a great originality and boldness in his harmony, which characteristic, however, is the mark of all really strong composers, and a use of the "leit motif" (leading motive) which was not of Wagner's invention, but had been used by Weber and many others, even by Donizetti before the Wagner time.

The form of the opera is also anything but Wagnerian; it contains a prelude and some dozen numbers, solos, duets, trios and choruses, nearly all composed in the Italian forms, as Verdi left them, gradually working up with constant repetitions of the words, to the conventional climax, giving plenty of opportunity for the singers to display their voices, and a good chance after each one for the expected applause and encore. Then, too, there is none of that intellectual spirit which is the characteristic of al great Teutonic compositions, the music is altogether Southern, full of the vivid sensuousness, the fiery passion of the Latin race. None but one born on the shores of the Mediterranean could have originated the glowing phrases which have carried this little work to instantaneous success. However, Mascagni has, like Verdi, abandoned the florid "floritura" which was the fame of the old Italian school, and this absence of trills and scale passages, together with the frequent use of bold harmonization and fearless modulation, and the intensely dramatic character of the music, may have caused superficial hearers to liken the work to Wagner's great creations.

The work is above all intensely tuneful, the most dramatic recitations being full of melodious phrases, while there are several magnificent melodies which enthrall the listener at the first hearing. Although none of these melodies are at all reminiscent of any particular piece, yet the style of composition sometimes reminds one of some of our great composers. You feel that Rossini at his very best might have written the great duet had he lived in our day, a Gounod might compose the prayer and religious chorus, or the exquisite intermezzo. In some passages the scheme of the harmony and the peculiar rhythm make one think that Chopin had he ever tried opera might have written them. The composer being so young, must naturally have been influenced by the great masters whom he must have studied most carefully, but the originality of his themes and the fervor of the whole composition, shows not only great achievement, but still greater promise.

The story of the libretto is as simple and as conventional as the musical forms employed, but these conventional numbers have been filled to overflowing with a passion and a fervor which we have not had from Italian composers for a long time. Turiddu, a young Sicilian, becomes a conscript in the army. During his years of service his sweetheart, Lola, marries Alfio, a carter. On the expiration of his term Turiddu returns to his native place, and falling in love with a beautiful young girl, Santuzza, ruins her under promise of marriage. Then Lola, who tires already of her husband, again fascinates her old lover, who neglects Santuzza. At this point the opera opens, but we are started in the play before the curtain rises. The prelude begins with a lovely theme, taken from a song of Santuzza's and representing her dishonor and then the superb themes of the duet, representing the pleading of the poor girl for justice, follow. This suddenly interrupted, a harp is heard, and from behind the curtain the tenor voice of Turiddu sings a most languidly passionate Siciliano, in which he tells of his love for Lola. As his voice dies away, the orchestra returns to the themes of the duet, carries them to a magnificent climax and ends pianissimo. This introduction of the voice into the overture is the one place when he leaves the old forms and the effect is delicious. The curtain rises on the public square of a Sicilian town. At the back a church and at one side the tavern of Lucia Turiddu's mother. It is Easter morning. Bells are heard from the church, the orchestra plays a couple of beautiful themes, the one church-like, the other spring-like, the customary chorus of peasants enter from the flies, walk about in the usual aimless fashion, so well known to the lovers of Italian opera, and then sing a capital chorus, telling of the beauties of spring, etc., using the themes already given out by the orchestra, with a couple of additional ones thrown in for good measure, for the young Mascagni is prodigal of his melodic treasures, and slips in exquisite phrases as if he had no trouble at all in finding tunes. Having done their duty, the chorus retires, leaving the stage clear for the entrance of the prima donna Santuzza. This is still further prepared by an orchestral prelude with a soft theme on the bass that Chopin might have written and been proud of. This is the chief "last motif" of the piece and recurs over and over again, increasing ever in tension and force. It is a most melancholy haunting phrase, like the wail of a lost soul, and to this sombre accompaniment Santuzza enters and goes to Lucia's cottage, searching for Turiddu. The sad phrase sounds all through the following short recitative which is interrupted by the jangling of bells and snapping of whips behind the scenes, a dashing prelude is played for the entrance of Alfio (baritone) and the accommodating chorus who accompany him in a rattling driving song with "whip obligato," fully as catching as the famous "whip song" of Adams' "Postillion" and much finer than it in harmony. Some of the bold modulations fairly take away one's breath, while the phrase, "Schiocci la Frusta" (snap the lash) is a "rusher." The composer makes an exquisite effect by taking the main theme, "andante," and syncopated for a sentimental passage, where the sturdy carter, Alfio, finds time to tell the chorus, with a husband's usual fatuity, how much his wife loves him. After this rousing song and a dozen or two bars of recitative, Alfio suddenly remembers that it is Easter Sunday, and telling the women they ought to go to church, goes out one side. The organ is heard, a chorus behind the scenes sings, unaccompanied, a beautiful setting of "Regino Coeli laetare," which is answered by the chorus outside by a most magnificent Easter song. Solos by Santuzza and Lucia, a composition worthy of Gounod at his very best. Then the chorus all enter the church, as Alfio has done some time before, leaving Lucia and Santuzza outside. This gives the poor girl an opportunity to tell her sad story to her lover's mother and win her sympathy in a romanza and scena of tender and surpassing beauty. The melodies are so simple and touching, and the "theme of the deserted one" reappears, this time in the vocal part as well as in the accompaniment. The story having been told Lucia enters the church, the graceless Turiddu of course makes his appearance. The series of pieces which now follows is the strongest part of the piece and its climax. The themes are all striking and the handling most excellent. First comes a duet between Turiddu and Santuzza, in which the latter tells that she knows all about Lola, and her old lover naturally gets exasperated. In the midst of this the voice of Lola, (mezzo soprano) is heard behind the scenes singing a delicious "stornello," "fior di giaggiolo." She enters still singing, and tries to take Turiddu along with her, but Santuzza is firm, and Lola, with a parting sneer, enters the church alone. In the continuation of the duet which follows we have the finest melodies of the piece. They have already been heard in the prelude, but are now worked out to their fullest capacity until Turiddu, in a magnificent climax, answers Santuzza's plea for justice by a definite refusal, throws her violently to the ground and rushes into the church, which acts as a convenient exit for all the characters. As the abandoned girl sinks exhausted to the ground the "theme of the deserted one" sounds out fortissimo with the same thrilling effect as the "warning motif" in "Lohengrin." Love and trust have been turned to hate and vengeance, and as Alfio of course re-enters immediately the scorned Santuzza tells him of his wife's unfaithfulness with Turiddu only to regret her precipitation, when she hears the wronged husband swear vengeance. With the lurid duet, which combines in exciting melodies, the threats of Alfio and the vain regrets of Santuzza, closes what may be called the first part of the opera. The stage is empty and the orchestra plays the "Intermezzo," which has become so popular from being played by Gilmore and other orchestras, although it is by no means the best number of the piece. The bells resound again, the opening theme is heard again, the peasants issue from the church and sing a bright little chorus, which has the true ring of the Italian folk songs. It is a very fascinating little piece. Then all gather round the tavern. Turiddu brings out the wine and makes this the occasion of singing with chorus accompaniment, a fine drinking song, whose harmonies and modulations are as fearless as those of the "whip song." The climax at the close is especially fine. Now enters Alfio, who immediately picks a quarrel with Turiddu. The women, seeing what is coming, retire. Turiddu immediately accepts the challenge of Alfio in the true Sicilian fashion, that is, he embraces his rival and bites his right ear. Having committed himself to a duel with a well-known fire-eater, the worthless Turiddu begins to feel remorse, and acknowledges his wrongs towards everybody, but on thinking that should he be slain that Santuzza would be left unprotected, resolves to do his best to kill Alfio, who grimly accepts the situation and retires to a convenient spot for the duel. This gives Turiddu a chance to call his mother from the house, say good-by to her and commend the poor, dishonored Santuzza to her loving care in a most touching melody—a melody giving a splendid opportunity for a dramatic tenor. He then rushes out—the orchestra plays a most vicious passage, then Santuzza enters to the accompaniment of a lovely theme from her solo. She and Lucia embrace. The chorus gather in agitation. Some one runs in to tell that Turiddu is killed. Lucia and Santuzza faints, the curtain falls, the chorus being too agitated to do anything else but scream.

News of the Stage.

Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" was repeated at the Grand last evening to another excellent audience. Mme. Basta-Tavary appeared as Santuzza, and although following an impersonation full of the fiery and passionate Sicilian spirit she scored a success and met the expectations that had been formed of her. The little opera was again received with enthusiasm. "La Traviata" will be given to-night, and hence the anticipated change will not take place, as Violetta is one of Mme. Basta-Tavary's strongest roles, and it was decided to give St. Louisans an opportunity to hear her in it. To-morrow evening "Lohengrin" will be put on with Mme. Hauk in the part of Elsa. Mme. Hauk appeared in the role here some years ago with brilliant success, her dramatic powers and artistic methods showing to great advantage.

Evans and Hoey in "A Parlor Match" drew a splendid audience to the Olympic yesterday. Despite its years the piece retains its entertaining qualities through the work of the humorous couple at the head of it. Miss Minnie French not only does a charming bit of soubrette work as Innocent Kidd, but she contributes an exceedingly clever and neat dance.

"The Still Alarm," with its attractive engine house scene and interesting story, is doing excellently at Pope's.

The varied features of "A Pair of Jacks" give pleasing entertainment to the audiences at Havlin's.

Lovers of the sensational drama of the border war kind find attractions to their taste in "Custer" at the Standard.

Every theater-goer in St. Louis knows bright Nellie McHenry of the twinkling feet and vivacious ways, and she will undoubtedly be given a cordial welcome in her new play, "A Night at the Circus," which is said to have won a genuine success. She will open at the Grand Sunday night.

Primrose and West's Minstrels will come to Pope's next week, opening Sunday afternoon. A host of new features and of clever entertainers are promised.

The popular melodrama, "Lost in New York," will be the attraction at Havlin's next week.

Niblo's French Burlesque Co. open at the Standard Sunday afternoon.

The first production of "Indigo," one of Johann Strauss' prettiest operas, will be given at the Olympic Theater next week by the W. T. Carleton Opera Co. The music is claimed to be the best the "Waltz King" has ever written. It is said to have its full complement of lovely waltzes and it also has in its composition enough lively jingle to make it delightful. From sentiment it changes to quick breezy measures, bright, wholesome music, and then relapses into a sweet melody, which, being carefully timed, produces unmixed harmony. The opera was recently produced at the Casino in New York with a libretto by F. C. Burnaud of the London Punch. While the New York public proclaimed the music delightful the libretto was condemned. When Mr. Carleton purchased the opera he rewrote the libretto, and it is credited with success. The sale of seats opened at the Olympic box-office to-day.

HEALTH SUGGESTIONS.

Plenty of light is as essential to good health as pure air.

Eat meals of good, plain food regularly. Mutton is the most digestible meat.

In wet weather wear stout water-proof boots in preference to rubber overshoes.

Dr. B. W. Richardson says that he has never known a death from bronchitis or pneumonia that did not spring from a cold. It follows then that a cold is a more dangerous malady than is usually thought; so be careful of yourself.

By far the best method of getting rid of a cold and consequent depression is to take a little pure whisky in water. Such a stimulant promotes the circulation which has been checked and removes the effects of the chill.

Great care should be exercised in buying whisky. The presence of fusil oil or other impurities is a source of danger to those who imbibe it.

The only whisky that is manufactured for purely medicinal purposes is Duffy's Pure Malt and may be obtained from druggists and grocers. There is no other whisky so free from fusil oil or so pure and beneficial. The leading scientists say so.
